Work to begin at two schools High School gym may not be complete until Jan. '96

By Neil Fater

Construction to the area in front of South and Sanborn elementary schools could begin as early as next week, and new drop-off areas at South and Sanborn schools will be completed by Aug. 26.

This date means that parents will have an easier time dropping off their children for the first day of school this fall.

However, while work on the elementary schools was able to start early, scheduling logistics may prevent the new Andover High School gymnasium from opening until January 1996. The new 30,000-square-foot gym originally was planned to be completed, along with a new science wing and front entrance, by the fall of 1995.

"It's got a fair amount of foundation work. A lot of that stuff you may not want to do in the wintertime," said Jim Marsh, head of the School Building Committee. "The goal is to have it on line for fall of '95, but we certainly don't want to pay significant premiums to do that."

Mr. Marsh said the architects at Earl R. Flansburgh and Associates Inc. will continue to weigh the cost of meeting the original deadline, before making a final decision.

Building boom in Andover keeps new building inspector busy

By Don Staruk

Peter DePesa is serious about building. And that's probably why he was hired last month as the town's newest building inspector. And after his short tenure, Kaija Gilmore, his boss, has told him she is pleased with his work, according to Mr. DePesa.

"They realize I know my business and I'm serious about my business," he said last week. "I'm a hands-on guy. I know what I'm looking at."

Mr. DePesa said a mini building boom taking place right now in Andover, one that is reminiscent of the building boom of the '80s, is keeping him and Michael Buss, the other building inspector, busy. [Mr. DePesa

South Church takes up youth cause

By Don Staruk

Members of South Church said Monday night that they will help the Andover Youth Council raise funds to build its Field of Dreams youth center at Recreation Park, and they asked selectmen to commit to funding operating expenses of the center.

Art Boni, of South Church, told selectmen the church will complete its own four-year restoration project next week. He said members now want to turn their attention and efforts to community needs, and they want to start by helping the youth of Andover organize their building project.

Field of Dreams is the Andover Youth Council's idea to build a facility that would include an activities hall, complete with a stage, and meeting rooms in Rec Park. According to the Youth Council and youth coordinator Bill Fahey, the project will provide the town's youth with a positive atmosphere for camaraderie and growth, and a bond with the community. It will create a facility to meet the needs of current and future generations, one the kids can "own."

Marden plane recovered, crash cause not determined

By Don Staruk

A salvage crew from Newburyport retrieved the plane last weekend that went down in Nantucket Sound with Andover attorney Reginald Marden, 46, and his son, Christopher, 16, on June 6, but the cause of the crash has not been determined.

"It's just unknown right now," Richard Childress, investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, said Wednesday.

Mr. Marden's body was recovered June 16. Christopher remains missing.

"I did a pretty heavy tear-down on the airplane," Mr. Childress said. "There's no evidence of sabotage or of any foul play."

Mr. Marden had reported the engine was losing power prior to ditching the plane into the sound, but Mr. Childress said he could not make a determination on whether the plane had run out of fuel. Both fuel tanks, which are in the wings, had holes in them from the wings bending in the water and were full of a mixture of fuel, water and sand. The fuel lines also had a mixture of water and fuel in them. The presence of fuel is not conclusive because the tanks will hold three gallons of fuel even when they are "empty."

Two magnetos, which provide the spark for ignition in the plane's engine, were totally destroyed and yielded no evidence of whether there might have been an electrical problem. The magnetos are made of a magnesium alloy "and saltwater literally eats them," Mr. Childress said.

"There was not a mechanical failure with the engine, but there's always a possibility of an electrical problem with the engine," he said.

Mr. Childress said he gathering fuel receipts to determine if the plane should have been out of fuel. He said the pilot's log book and license were found in the plane, but nothing else.

"Both doors were open and the front seat belts were unfastened," Mr. Childress said.

A friend of Mr. Marden's said Mr. Marden was clad only in underwear when his body was found, possibly indicating that he had gotten out of the plane and attempted to swim. But Mr. Childress said the plane yielded no clues about that. "It's pure speculation," Mr. Childress said.

He said the window behind the pilot's seat was cracked, and that that likely happened from the impact of hitting the water. "It was a good landing. The aircraft was virtually undamaged," Mr. Childress said.

Damage to the left rear stabilizer likely occurred during the landing, because similar, albeit slighter, damage was found on the right stabilizer.

Mr. Childress said he couldn't tell if the plane had been stationary on the bottom after it sunk, or whether damage to the bottom of the engine cowling might have occurred after the initial impact. But he said the plane did not move after the initial salvage effort failed, because the crane lost in that effort was only 10 feet from the plane. The crane and barge that sank during the first salvage effort were not recovered.

Mr. Childress said he is holding the plane for now, and that he took about 200 pictures of various parts and will have them examined by experts. He will probably release the plane in about a month. His report on the accident will be out six months after the date of the crash, he said.

Flawless salvage

The salvage crew from Merri-Mar Yacht Basin in Newburyport left for Nantucket last Thursday night at 6 p.m. on the 55-foot vessel, Salvage 1. They arrived on site about six miles off Nantucket's Great Point, at noon Friday. The salvage operation took just two hours, 18 minutes and was fairly routine, according to Jay Lesynski, who owns Merri-Mar with his father, Walter.

"We have the right equipment and we've done it before," Mr. Lesynski said. "This is not our first airplane."

The salvage crew, which included Mr. Lesynski and Tom Burton, of Newburyport, and Edward MacKenzie and Pat O'Brien of Merrimack, sat down and planned the entire Nantucket operation before leaving Newburyport. They used "lift bags" to float the plane and a crane to haul it aboard Salvage 1. Heavy fog along the coast during the entire trip did not hinder the divers, according to Mr. Lesynski. The only problem were tidal currents of 6-7 knots.

Salvage 1 returned to Newburyport, via the Cape Cod Canal, at about 12:30 Saturday afternoon. A crowd of roughly 100 people that met the plane in Newburyport included Marden family and friends, officials from a variety of investigating agencies and spectators. The plane was loaded onto a flatbed truck and taken to Four Star Aviation at Lawrence Municipal Airport where it was examined by Mr. Childress and representatives of the manufacturer.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Seniors tentatively eye spot on Railroad Street for new center

By Neil Fater

Bill Ryan compared the Council on Aging's situation to a recently-married couple's plight. They know they want to buy a house; they just don't know where yet.

Members of the Council on Aging currently are focusing their attention on the old Tyer Rubber building on Railroad Street as a possible site for a new senior center. But before they pursue that location, they want to make sure there will be no problems with health and safety there.

Because it was a former rubber facility, there is the possibility that hazardous waste is present, according to Buzz Stapczynski, town manager.

"We selected a site which we think we want to go after," said Mr. Ryan, council member, of the Tyer Rubber location. "That's clearly the site that survived the cut, but I'm not sure that's going to work out."

Dorothy Bresnahan, council chairwoman, emphasized the tentativeness of the pursuit, saying a final decision on that location will not be made until the council's September meeting.

"To be very honest with you we aren't very far ahead on it," she said. "There are a lot of avenues we have to explore before we do anything definite."

Among these avenues are the possibility of problems with traffic patterns and the presence of hazardous waste, according to Mr. Stapczynski.

Because the proposed location is near the intersection of Railroad and Main streets, traffic near the building may be heavy at times. In addition, because the site housed a former manufacturing plant, "the chance of having hazardous materials is pretty high," said Mr. Stapczynski.

"That's the site that's survived the bidding process up to this point. But there's always the possibility that won't work out either," said Mr. Ryan. "We're very early in the investigative process."

Several months ago the town advertised for land owners with available plots of five acres or more, and received approximately a half-dozen responses, said to Mr. Stapczynski.

"Some of them fit the criteria to a "T," others didn't fit them as well," he said.

Among the responses were the current Elks Lodge location on South Main Street, the Tyer Rubber location on Railroad Street, the Marland Mills location that may now be made into a housing complex, and a Chapman Avenue site off Bartlett Street. Mr. Stapczynski described that site as "intriguing," but there did not seem to be adequate space for parking.

The Council on Aging originally selected the land owned by the Elks on Route 28, South Main Street, but a test of the area showed the ground was likely too wet for the type of septic system that will be needed for such a large facility.

"The other sites that were submitted, one just wasn't big enough and one was just out of the area," said Mr. Ryan. "So what we have right now, (the Tyer Rubber location), could be the site."

Ms. Bresnahan said more land offers will probably be requested should the Tyer Rubber location not be deemed suitable.

The site will be examined further this summer.

Fund-raising efforts will begin in earnest after a location is chosen and site plans and architectural designs are well underway, according to Mr. Ryan.

Elm Green veterans memorial raised $40k, still needs $20k

The Andover Patriotic Holiday Committee has announced that $40,000 has been raised toward its goal of $60,000 for the Elm Green veterans memorial to be built in Elm Square.

The April 1992 town Meeting voted to spend $30,000 toward the cost of the memorial, with the balance to be raised from private donations. The restored Elm Green will have a 40-foot flag pole set in the center to highlight the memorial.

The committee is asking for help in raising the remaining $20,000 so the project can be completed.

Tax-deductible checks may be made out to Elm Green/Town of Andover and mailed to Elm Green/Town of Andover, P.O. Box 130, Andover, Mass. 01810.

All donations will become a part of official town history.

Town taxes mailed and due Aug. 1

The town of Andover has mailed the preliminary tax bill for Fiscal Year 1995. The first payment is due Monday, Aug. 1.

Taxes unpaid after that date are subject to interest charges of 14 percent.

The town offices at 36 Bartlett St. are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tax payments can also be left in the white mailbox with the blue Town of Andover seal in front of town offices. If mailed, use the envelope provided and do not fold the bill.

The tax collector's office will be open Monday night, Aug. 1, from 6 to 8 p.m. If you have any questions or have not received a bill, call the town offices at 470-3800.

But "once you stop, the negative side effects cease immediately. You're already gaining years on your life."

Ms. Ross-Kung said she knows of smokers who have ignored free programs because they did not want to tell their boss they smoked, and Tim Thomas, High School principal, talked of a teacher who hid from others the fact that she starting smoking again.

The grant for Ms. Ross-Kung's program is funded by a 25-cent tax on tobacco sales.

"It's the smokers' money, let's be honest. Let's let the smokers get something out of it," said Ms. Ross-Kung. "We're going to work ourselves out of a job."

Bravermans volunteer at a kids' camp

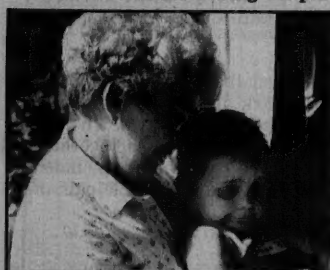

Third in a continuing series that will run this summer on Andover people who are extraordinary volunteers.

Bobbi and Ken Braverman of Andover recently returned from a week-long volunteer effort as camp counselors at Camp Sunshine, a family retreat in Casco, Maine, for children with life-threatening diseases.

In operation since 1984, Camp Sunshine provides free, one-week respites for families whose youngsters are undergoing active treatment for chronic diseases, such as cancer, kidney disease and fanconi anemia. During the past

Ken Braverman, who is working to put together a book of photos of Camp Sunshine, took this photo of himself and one of his happy charges. He also took the photo, at left, of his wife, Bobbi Braverman, holding a child.

10 years, Camp Sunshine has provided more than 1,500 families from the Northeast the opportunity to "recharge their batteries" and cope more effectively with the emotional stress brought on by a life-threatening illness.

Camp Sunshine is completely staffed and run by volunteers, accommodating an average of 60 families during each week of operation.

The Bravermans helped at the camp by supporting the children and families as counselors in the tot lot (3-5 years old) and served dinner meals. No other experience in retirement has raised their level of gratification as this, they say. This is their fifth year at Camp Sunshine. They heard about it from a friend.

"The program is really terrific," says Joe Pappalardo, Camp Sunshine's volunteer coordinator. "It gives the entire family an opportunity to escape from the day-to-day struggles of dealing with a life-threatening illness. It would be impossible without volunteers like Bobbi and Ken."

Camp Sunshine is the only facility listed in the National Directory of Children's Cancer Camps that is for the entire family. Currently held four weeks each year, plans are underway to provide Camp Sunshine with a

Tina Girdwood

The board and staff of the Northeast Region of Massachusetts Prevention of Cruelty to Children unanimously nominated Tina Girdwood, of Andover, to receive the John B. Whiteman award this year. The award honors a member of the board or staff who has made an outstanding contribution to the society.

Tina Girdwood

"Her 12 years of involvement personify all the aspects of volunteerism that this agency has nourished and flourished under. Starting with her home visiting in the early Good Start days, through her years as regional board president, state board member, executive committee participant, on all levels she has proven herself to be a dedicated advocate of children," said Eileen Rosenzweig, Northeast Regional board president; and Roslyn Mam-lak, Northeast Regional administrator.

"We in the Northeast Region are saddened by her decision to retire from day-to-day involvement with us and are envious that the state board will reap the reward as she becomes an at-large corporator. She is tireless in her devotion, concern and caring for this agency, the children and their families. We feel strongly that hers is the kind of commitment that deserves honoring."

Enzo Fossella

Enzo Fossella has recently been the inspiration and creator of a new organization called Service Club of Andover. "Mr. Fossella wasn't satisfied with things as they were, so he has personally rounded up a group of Andover professionals who, in his words, 'make a difference,'" wrote Hooks Johnston, also a member of Service Club.

Enzo Fossella

The group now numbers more than 50. It has undertaken a mentoring program for 10 youths at the High School and involving adults from five companies. It has also started another program to work with certain High School students to better shape their vocational choices. Another program is to be focused on mentally challenged young people after high school.

"All of these things spring from Enzo. His stature may be modest, but his heart is very big," said Mr. Johnston.

BRIDGING THE GAPS

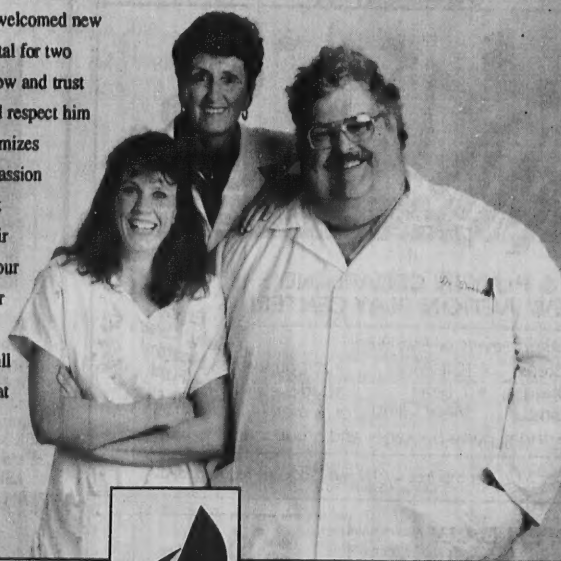

Fixed bridges provide cemented replacements for missing teeth. They consist of abutment inlays or crowns (which are attached to abutment teeth on either end of the restorations) as well as the pontics (which are the actual replacements for the missing teeth). Fixed bridges are usually called upon to replace one or two teeth. If three or more teeth are missing, the abutments must possess roots that are long and strong enough to properly shoulder the stress. In cases where long-span bridges are required, double abutments at one or both ends may be called for. Otherwise, if the crowns and roots of abutment teeth are short, it may be advisable to go with a removable bridge.

If one or more of your teeth have been lost to damage or decay, prompt attention & construction of a fixed or removable bridge will prevent bigger and more painful problems later on. Visit your dentist on a regular basis and practice good home oral hygiene. It will pay off in the long run. Remember, there is little the dentist can do to overcome what a patient will not do. See how comfortable a visit to the dentist can be - call us at 475-2431, 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93. Our office is open Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6, & by appointment.

P.S. In cases where fixed bridges are called upon to fill small spaces, it may be necessary to have one abutment (from which the pontic is anchored).

South Church/Youth Council

Selectmen endorsed the project in May. An architectural firm, Andover Consultants Inc., has been contracted by the town to design a plan to upgrade Rec Park, including adding new ball fields and racquet courts, and has been directed to make choosing a site for the Field of Dreams building its number-one priority. Selectmen said Monday night they want that site to be laid out before the end of July.

Selectman Gerald Silverman also said he doesn't think the project should be clouded by involving other groups in the building, such as the Shawsheen Extended Day program. There has been some discussion recently that SHED, currently based at Shawsheen School, could help fund operation of the building if it were given a home there.

"SHED does not belong with this area," Mr. Silverman said.

But selectman Charles Wesson said he doesn't think that idea should be dismissed so quickly.

"I think there might be a natural marriage there," Mr. Wesson said.

Filling a need

Mr. Boni said that for more than a year church members have been hearing and reading about needs of youth in town. They wanted to get involved and felt the Field of Dreams project was a good one. The church group has met with the Youth Council twice and they welcome the church's involvement, Mr. Boni said.

Mr. Boni said the group will start by forming the Andover Church Council Enterprise Project Team, or ACCEPT. Ballardvale United Methodist Church, West Parish Church and Christ Church have already expressed an interest in participating. The group plans to invite all religious groups in town to get involved.

ACCEPT will help in the planning, fund-raising and execution of the project, Mr. Boni said. It will form a steering committee to assist the Youth Council with their leadership role. It will also assist with overall project coordination and execution, and help nurture a public/private partnership for doing the actual building. The group will also help the Youth Council with program development, planning for the center's funding needs, both long and short term, and in coordinating ongoing programs.

But the churches' greatest role will likely be in fund raising. ACCEPT will solicit funds from the private sector for the initial capital project. In-kind donations of time and labor are also welcome and encouraged, but cash will be needed, Mr. Boni said. The town would then own the building and pick up the operational costs, and those costs would be supplemented with program fees. Mr. Boni said the town will also be asked to loan personnel where possible when needed, and the town manager would be asked to cooperate with organizing the public/private venture.

Mr. Boni said all that is needed from selectmen is continued active support for the project, and a commitment for long-term support by creation of a line item in the budget for funding youth services, which would include money for the building's operations.

Selectmen did not commit to that Monday night, saying they have to see where the town manager chose to put such an item in the budget. But selectman Larry Larsen, with as much as a nod and a wink, assured Mr. Boni and other members of the South Church group that the funding would be made available.

"I don't think there will be any problem," Dr. Larsen said.

Work to begin on two schools

The construction documents are currently being completed for all three school buildings and the project is expected to go out to bid by mid-August.

A separate, advanced site-work package was prepared to allow early completion of the new drop-off areas, and one new soccer field at both South and Sanborn schools. The School Building Committee was expected to select a contractor for this task last night, Wednesday, after the Townsmen went to press.

Both drop-offs should be entirely completed by fall except for a finished coat of asphalt.

"Rather than damage the finished coat, we've decided to hold that up until the following summer," said Mr. Marsh. This should prevent damage to the final appearance of the area caused by heavy construction or winter plowing.

The new soccer fields are expected to be cleared and flattened by Sept. 30 so that they can be planted before winter. This will allow the grass a full year's growth, before they are put into use in the fall of 1995.

Work on the elementary and High School buildings will begin in October, and the South and Sanborn facilities will be completed by the fall of 1995. The building committee met with the architects for the elementary projects Wednesday night after the Townsmen went to press.

The new High School science wing, front entry and lobby will be complete by the start of school in 1995 with the rest of the High School project to follow before the start of the 1996-1997 school year.

The only significant change to the High School plan is the placement of the softball field behind the school.

"The softball field may be located back down by the baseball and football fields to save the cost of creating a new field," said Mr. Marsh. "It appears with a little bit of re-configuration we may be able to locate that down below instead of up above."

The building committee will meet with the High School architects tonight, Thursday.

Following that meeting, a project management firm may be selected to oversee construction at the three sites.

"They are really the day-to-day people," said Mr. Marsh. "They'll basically be our - the town's - eyes and ears on site at all three projects."

The technology committee has been formed to address the technological upgrade to all of the town's school buildings, and it has tentatively scheduled its first meeting for Monday.

Man charged in July 4 fire

By Don Staruk

Andover police detectives arrested an Andover man Tuesday night and charged him with arson in connection with a fire that damaged a building in Ballardvale on July 4.

Kyle Kiberd, 18, of 4 Morningside Drive, was arrested and charged with one count of arson. He was scheduled to be arraigned in Lawrence District Court Wednesday morning.

At 3:37 p.m. on Monday, July 4, firefighters responded to a fire at The Frost Co. Inc., at 224R Andover St., behind Shawsheen Rubber Co. The fire started in a Dumpster and

Lawrence Cancro of Andover, marketing VP for the Red Sox, receives Visitors Bureau award

The Greater Boston Convention and Visitors Bureau (GBCVB) recently honored Lawrence Cancro, vice president of marketing of the Boston Red Sox, with the "Spirit of Appreciation Award" at the 20th annual meeting and awards dinner held in Boston.

Mr. Cancro received this special recognition for his commitment and success in expanding the visitor industry to include national and international sporting events and sports meetings.

Mr. Cancro is chairman of the Sports Advisory Council for the GBCVB and has worked with the sports and visitor industry to market Boston as a city that can successfully host high-profile sports events and meetings. He has been instrumental in securing for Boston the 1996 U.S.

MV Chamber president meets with U.S. secretary of labor

Joseph J. Bevilacqua, Merrimack Valley Chamber of Commerce president, met recently with Robert Reich, the U.S. Secretary of Labor, in Boston.

Secretary Reich held a meeting to advise of the president's new Re-employment Proposal Act program to assist the economy and create and sustain jobs via the use of job training and retraining programs for jobs in the private sector that exist and will be available.

Also, assistance will be provided in entrepreneurial training to assist in helping new businesses get off the ground. Mr. Bevilacqua told the secretary that particular attention must be paid to the person currently employed who is in need of skill upgrading in order to keep pace with changing technologies. He also said that attention must begin in the earliest school grades with the usual education programs to now include reference to school to work transition.

Mr. Bevilacqua advised Secretary Reich of the ongoing efforts currently underway with the Lower Merrimack Valley Regional Employment Board, of which he is vice-chairman, chaired by Leonard Wilson and directed by Peter Vainer.

He presented the secretary with the Merrimack Valley Chamber of Commerce's Economic Brochure and advised Secretary Reich of the economic development efforts the chamber is pursuing.

J.B. Doherty employees attend seminar on relocation

Representatives from J.B. Doherty Associates, located on Bartlet Street, attended a full-day seminar in Woburn sponsored by RELO/International Relocation Network. The program focused on agent productivity through technology and new trends and services for corporate relocation. Special sessions were available for managers, owners and corporate relocation specialists.

RELO is the world's oldest and largest broker network that specializes in meeting the needs of companies and individuals involved in the relocation process. Membership is available only to independent agencies that have met stringent performance qualifications. RELO members were responsible for more than $1 billion in referral productivity during 1993. J.B. Doherty has been a member since 1982.

Jack Hewitt, Kathy Edholm and Linda DiOrto joined 140 area agents at the seminar. J.B. Doherty participated in a special session for owners.

RELO has announced a joint venture with Maenner Relocation Inc., a national relocation management firm. Through this alliance, all RELO members will have access to a complete range of programs that can be made available to local employers.

Elizabeth Houlihan on panel about breaking through the glass ceiling

Andover resident Elizabeth Houlihan, vice president of residence sales for NYNEX, recently participated in a panel discussion titled "Breaking through the glass ceiling," in celebration of women's history.

The panel discussion, which was sponsored by the Association of Management Women at NYNEX, was held at NYNEX's headquarters complex in Boston.

Ms. Houlihan was one of seven female executives at NYNEX to discuss how she climbed the corporate ladder and NYNEX's commitment to supporting her career and diversity in the workplace.

She is responsible for all residence business offices and credit/collection centers for NYNEX in New England and New York and has responsibility for nearly 6,000 employees. Prior to her current position, Ms. Houlihan was general manager of operations for NYNEX and oversaw 3,500 operations employees and their functions in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and western and central Massachusetts.

Before entering the telecommunications field, she taught at the elementary school level in New Bedford, and served in the U.S. Army in Vietnam. She began her telephone career in 1972.

Since then she has held a number of key assignments at New England Telephone, AT&T and NYNEX Business Information Systems Company, progressing from supervisor to her current general manager position.

Ms. Houlihan received a bachelor of science degree in education from Salem State College, and has completed the Program for Management Development at Harvard Business School.

She and her husband, William, have four sons, Daniel, Michael, Sean and Matthew.

William Lane elected a trustee of Massachusetts Hospital Assoc.

William L. Lane of Andover, president and chief executive officer of Holy Family Hospital and Medical Center in Methuen, was elected recently to the board of trustees of Massachusetts Hospital Association (MHA).

The not-for-profit organization was founded in 1936 to represent the collective interests of acute and specialty hospitals in Massachusetts. The 28-member board sets policies and priorities for the association.

Mr. Lane joined Holy Family Hospital in 1971 as associate administrator and became its president in 1972. He was previously assistant director of Lawrence General Hospital.

He received his master of science degree in hospital administration from Columbia University in New York. He has lectured at Boston University School of Business Administration, Merrimack College Under-

Hunneman adds interactive 24-hour phone line

The Andover office of Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker, New England's largest residential real estate firm, is introducing Hunneman On Call, a fully interactive telephone real-estate information service available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

From a touch-tone phone, the service provides buyers with several options to assist them in their search for a new house, including a detailed description and asking price of houses advertised in print media and/or on yard signs; a description of houses on the market in a specific community and price range. (If a caller is interested in a specific house, he may press the "*" button to directly access a sales associate, ask questions or arrange a showing).

Another option will automatically calculate the caller's monthly mortgage payments for a specific property based on current mortgage rates. If desired, the system can directly connect the caller with a loan originator.

"It is critical that the real estate industry react by providing the technology to meet the service demands and expectations of the customer. Hunneman On Call will provide a more advanced and convenient means in which to access information immediately," said William E. Kiley Jr., president of Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker.

This new interactive service is at no cost to the seller and can be quickly updated and/or changed. The seller's home will be marketed on the system for as long as it takes to sell the house.

"This new technology gives the home seller the capability to highlight and market many of their home's important features," said John McCusker, manager of the Andover office.

There are several options that will be added to Hunneman On Call, allowing home buyers to access information on a wide variety of subjects including open house information; first-time home-buyer news; and relocation services.

Olympic Gymnastic Trials and National Congress, the 1998 NCAA hockey finals, the 1995 Sports Lawyers Association meeting and Major League Baseball's Fanfest and the 125th Anniversary celebration Aug. 4-7.

"Larry made it possible to bring a great idea to life. The Sports Advisory Committee, which Cancro chairs, is made up of Boston sports industry officials who identify the most important sporting events to bring to Boston. Larry has been the leader of this committee and has made it possible to bring events into Boston that in the past would never have considered Boston," said Patrick B. Moscaritolo, president of the GBCVB.

Mr. Cancro is one of 23 visitor industry representatives who were recognized for their contributions, time, energy and creative talents in marketing Boston as one of the most unique cities in the world.

FINANCIAL STRATEGIES

by Ronald R. Hill, CLU, ChFC

RETIREMENT, INCOME AND SOCIAL SECURITY

When workers reach retirement age, they must control the levels of their incomes to avoid any cuts in their Social Security benefits. Under the rules, retirees between the ages of 62 and 64 may earn up to $7,440 annually before their Social Security benefits are lowered. For every two dollars they earn beyond that amount, however, they will lose one dollar in benefits. For retirees between the ages of 65 and 69, the earning restriction is loosened a bit. People in this age group may earn up to $10,200 per year before benefits are cut. Beyond that income level, they will lose one dollar in benefits for every three dollars earned. As for retirees who reach age 70, they can earn as much as they want without being saddled with a cut in benefits. Keeping this information in mind as you plan your retirement and the investments that will help fund it is a good idea. We can help you coordinate this and all other aspects of your financial plan - please give us a call today. Talking with us involves no obligation on your part; written references are available on request.

At BAYSTATE FINANCIAL SERVICES, we offer services in five distinct areas: Investments, pension and retirement, life insurance and estate planning, group benefits, and fee-based financial planning. Our office is located at 10 Essex St., here in Andover. Please call us at 475-3212. For your convenience we also have a Boston office at 100 N. Washington St. (617-323-4500). I am a Chartered Financial Consultant.

NOTE: Those who retire today at the age of 62 can expect to live at least another 20 to 25 years.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

DIGESTIVE AID

Before taking another dose of antacid to deal with indigestion and heartburn, people with stomach problems may be better off seeking chiropractic treatment. This is an especially good idea before a digestive problem becomes severe or chronic. The chiropractor's goal is to achieve long-term relief by manipulating the spine in the area of the mid-back. It is here where nerves controlling the stomach emerge from their spinal opening. If these nerves are impinged or irritated on their way to the stomach, the digestive system may suffer. By removing the source of nerve interference, the chiropractor hopes to clear up the problem, not mask its symptoms with antacids.

Our methods are natural, safe and gentle, and recommended for all ages, even pregnant women and infants. If you have health problems, please call us at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. We offer prevention and treatment of neck and shoulder pain, headaches, whiplash, bursitis, low back and leg pain, etc. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. The chiropractor is also trained in providing nutritional guidance that may help solve a digestive problem.

Antique clock maker, restorer, seller, returns to Andover

Bob Frishman, founder of Bell-Time Clocks, has returned to live in Andover.

He grew up on Castle Heights Road and graduated from Andover High School in 1969. At a newly-purchased home at 53 Poor St., just off Shawsheen Square, he specializes in repair, restoration and sale of antique clocks and watches.

Mr. Frishman began collecting and fixing old timepieces in 1980 while a Congressional aide in Washington, D.C.

With skills sharpened by hundreds of repairs and completion of two courses run by the American Watchmakers Institute, he resigned last year as president of AKKO Inc., a Lawrence furniture manufacturer, to devote full time work to his hobby-turned profession.

Bob Frishman

Repair customers include Shreve, Crump & Low in Boston. He sells timepieces at major antique fairs including Brimfield. He has lectured on the history, culture and science of timekeeping at Northern Essex Community College, Andover Books & Prints and Andover

Senior Center.

His next engagement is Aug. 3, at noon, at the Andover Historical Society.

Mr. Frishman is married to author and Brooks School teacher Jeanne Schinto.

He is open by appointment.

Two men arrested in house break

By Don Staruk

Two out-of-town men were arrested Saturday morning, July 9, and charged with breaking into a Blueberry Circle home while its residents were sleeping.

At 5:17 a.m., police received a report and a description of two males walking through the Blueberry Circle neighborhood, going behind some houses. A neighbor confronted one of the men, who said he was looking for his car and that he couldn't remember where he'd parked it. When police arrived, they could not find either man.

At 6:51 a.m., a Blueberry Circle resident reported there had been a break at her house and a pocketbook containing $150 to $160 cash, credit cards and a pocket knife were taken. Entry was gained through a window in the back of the house.

SCHOOLTALK ROUND-UP

Kaleidoscope has added an extra Adventure Theater class. Children ages 3-5 have an opportunity to take the course offered by Kaleidoscope this summer. Jan Peters will teach two extra theater arts classes July 18-22: a morning session (9-11:30 daily) for ages 3 and 4 and an afternoon class (noon-2:30 daily) appropriate for ages 4 and 5.

Many other courses are also available. For information or registration, contact Kaleidoscope by writing to Box 506, Andover, Mass. 01810, or call 475-1422.

Sanborn School students had the opportunity to meet four published authors before the school year ended. Their visits were sponsored by the Enrichment Committee of the PTO.

Author Jay O'Callahan spoke with first-graders about his book Orange Cheeks. He explained how he goes about writing a book and related his talk to the process-writing curriculum the children have been working on. Mr. O'Callahan has had numerous publications and won many awards, including the Parents' Choice Award, according to a spokesperson for the PTO.

Grades 2 and 3 heard Lucinda Landon speak about the process of writing a mystery. She has written the Meg Mackintosh mystery series. Ms. Landon discussed the elements that need to be present in a good mystery and what it takes to be a good detective.

Rob Taylor, mountain climber and author, spoke to grades 3-5 on the climbing of Mount Kilimanjaro, which he wrote about in his book The Breach. "He was an entertaining storyteller and included a variety of messages in his talk and slide presentation about team work, goal-setting, and belief in one's self," organizers said. He has written several other books about his mountain-climbing experiences.

Grades 4 and 5 were visited by local author Jeffrey Kelly, who wrote Tramp Steamer and the Silver Bullet. He amused the students with tales of his childhood, which he incorporates into his writing.

The authors provided time for questions and autographing copies of their books.

Shawsheen School held its second annual ice cream social Wednesday, June 8. There was the added attraction of face-painting and balloon crafts. It was an opportunity to socialize and meet next year's students and their families.

On June 13 and 14, students learned the craft of papermaking from Rosemary Webb of Andover. After learning the language of papermaking and a demonstration of the process, students made their own paper. After the paper dried, the students made Father's Day cards.

Summer programs in the Children's Room at Memorial Hall Library are in full swing as young readers and "almost-readers" sign up for their "Ticket to Read." All are invited to embark on this reading adventure, which

Andover students named to honor roll, graduate from Gov. Dummer

Six students from Andover graduated from Governor Dummer Academy in Byfield.

Among the 87 members of the class of 1994 who participated in Governor Dummer's 231st commencement exercises June 3 were:

Erin M. Canavin, the daughter of Madonna K. Canavin of Haskell Road, who plans to attend Drew University next fall;

Melissa V. King, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. King of Burton Farm Drive, who plans to attend St. Lawrence University in September;

Robert A. Lewis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Lewis of Oriole Drive, who plans to attend Ithaca College in September;

Nicole E. Mahue, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald T. Mahue of Blueberry Hill Road, who will attend the College of the Holy Cross next year;

Karen E. Silver, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen R. Silver of Cameron Road, who plans to attend Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., in September; and

Brett A. Wentworth, the son of Beverly Wentworth of Suncrest Road, who will attend Babson

College in the fall.

Six students from Andover have been named to the high honor roll and honor roll at Governor Dummer Academy for the fourth quarter of the 1993-'94 school year.

den of Orchard Street and the late Reginald L. Marden, was named to the high honor roll. High honor roll status is achieved by maintaining a grade-point average higher than 3.3 on a scale of 4.0.

Students named to the honor roll include seniors Robert A. Lewis; Nicole E.

Maheu; Karen E. Silver; Brett A. Wentworth; and Elizabeth C. Graff, daughter of Jeanne M. Graff of Blueberry Hill Lane and Robert J. Graff of New York City. Honor roll status is achieved with a grade-point average between 3.0 and 3.29 on a scale of 4.0.

CORNER

with Jean Fitzgerald & Pamela Lebowitz

WHAT TO ASK FOR YOUR HOME

Pricing a house is the most important part of the marketing process. You want to get as much for the property as you can, but if you set the price too high, you can frighten off qualified purchasers. Your Realtor can tell you the selling price of homes similar to yours. Pricing strategy depends on market conditions, and it is different in a buyers' market than it is in a sellers' market.

If your home is overpriced, the marketplace will let you know about it. If it does not sell in a reasonable period of time, you and your Realtor should have a frank discussion to determine whether too high a price tag is the reason. Your Realtor will contact Realtors who have shown your home for their feedback. Remember that price is only one factor. You might consider ways you can make the property easier for Realtors to show or any minor cosmetic fix-ups that will make it more attractive. You should also discuss the current market conditions. The problem may be some combination of factors, including an overly-optimistic asking price.

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at Century 21 Carriage House. Call us at 475-1243, or stop by our office at 10 High Street.

encourages and motivates children to keep up their reading skills and rewards them for time spent with books or being read to.

Drop-in story hours for 3-6 year olds began last week. Schedules are available from the Children's Room, or by calling the library at 475-6960.

Children with summer reading lists are encouraged to come in and look for books and authors on their lists. Librarians are reportedly eager to help children locate interesting summer reading and provide assistance in finding needed titles from suggested reading lists.

The Andover schools' physical education department sponsored the annual town-wide fourth- and fifth-grade track-and-field meet Thursday, June 9, at Lovely Field.

The children at each elementary school formed teams by grade and gender.

The schools were recognized by students wearing their school colors.

The children competed for fun and cheered on their classmates.

The Andover High School track team aided the staff in organizing the town's 1,184 fourth- and fifth-graders.

A glimpse of the crowd at last month's townwide track-and-field meet for fourth- and fifth-graders at Lovely Field.

At the track-and-field meet with Charlie Friel, West Elementary's principal, are fifth-grade teachers (back row) Sondra Finegold, Nancy Di-Salvo; (front row) Liz Greene, Barbara Bunn and Kathy Iworsley.

The Andover Sportsmen's Club presented $500 scholarships to two recent graduates of Andover High School.

Amanda Wilson (AHS '94) will attend the University of Maine at Orono, majoring in animal sciences. She graduated in the upper 15 percent of her class and was active in varsity swimming (lettering all four years), basketball and softball. Ms. Wilson served at Bread and Roses soup kitchen, and worked part-time at Demoulas.

Kevin Pojasek (AHS '94), a National Honor Society member, will major in microbiology at the University of Colorado at Boulder in the fall. He was an active member of student government, chaired the Bloodmobile Drive at the High School, volunteered with the American Heart Association, and was a varsity volleyball player, participating in the state semifinal competition.

The National Interscholastic Swimming Coaches Association recently announced the recipients of its Academic All-American awards for the 1993-'94 year.

Andover High School graduating seniors Kerry Brady and Mandy Wilson were honored for maintaining a four-year cumulative average of 3.75 or better while contributing to the success of the varsity swimming and diving team. They are the first members of the AHS girls team to earn this honor.

Both girls were North Sectional and State qualifiers.

Ms. Wilson will attend the University of Maine at Orono, while Ms. Brady will study at Boston College.

Amelia Anderson of Andover was inducted into the Regis College and Emmanuel College at-large Nursing Honor Society. Only the top 33 percent of students in each class can be inducted into the at-large Nursing Honor Society, an honor awarded to outstanding students based on grade-point average, scholarly work and community service.

Regis College is located in Weston.

Two Andover students have been named to the dean's list at Roger Williams University in Bristol, R.I., for the spring semester.

The Andover students are Trina B. Norton and Kevin D. Nusky.

Two Andover High School graduates recently received bachelor of arts degrees at the 128th Bates College commencement in Lewiston, Maine.

They are Michael T. Cowhig Jr., son of Michael and Patricia Cowhig of 11 Haskell Road, and Andrea Georgian, daughter of Ted and Colleen Georgian of 11 Lovejoy Road.

Mr. Cowhig was an economics major and dean's list student and a member of the Chase Hall Committee and tennis team.

Ms. Georgian was a dean's list student and English major and a member of Students in Admissions. She was captain of the tennis team and received the Four-Year Letter Award in tennis. Ms. Georgian was a student teacher in local schools during her senior year.

Elizabeth Block, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Michael Block of 7 Seminole Circle, graduated magna cum laude from the George Washington University school of liberal arts. Her major was English and minor was art history.

Elizabeth Block

Ms. Block interned at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., and has decided to make art history her field of expertise. She will attend the George Washington University graduate school master's program in the fall.

Ms. Block is a graduate of Andover High School class of 1990.

Vincent Bradley of Andover, a history major, received his degree from Siena College in Loudonville, N.Y., on May 22.

Molly Campbell, a student majoring in mass communications/journalism at Emerson College in Boston, has been named to the dean's list for the spring semester.

Seven Andover students have been named to Colby College's dean's list for outstanding academic achievement during the spring semester.

Linnea M. Basu, daughter of Dibyendu and SueAnne Basu, is a member of the class of 1996 majoring in government.

Veena Channamsetty, daughter of Vijay and Naga Durga Channamsetty, is a member of the class of 1995

SOCIAL NEWS

Lunchtime program offers history tips

Have you ever wanted to write the history of your life, your family or your town? Eleanor Richardson, author of the forthcoming book Andover: A Century of Change 1896-1996, will join photo researcher Christine Gebhard to discuss the process at a lunchtime program, Wednesday noon, July 27, at the Andover Historical Society.

Ms. Richardson will review some of the steps involved in writing this book, which began three years ago with groundwork laid by the Historical Society's publications committee. She will also preview a few stories from the Andover history.

Ms. Gebhard will offer some tips on photo conservation and selection, and show historic photos being considered for the book.

Bring lunch; lemonade and cookies will be provided. Admission is $1.

Call the Historical Society at 475-2236.

Travel with DCS this summer

The Department of Community Services is offering summer day trips off the coast of New England. A whale watch takes place today, Thursday, July 14, out of Boston Harbor on board the MV Commonwealth. A bus will leave Andover at 8 a.m. and return by 5 p.m. Cost is $19 per person.

The next DCS outing is the Newport Sail Away on Saturday, July 30. Sail Narragansett Bay in comfort and style on board the new Bay Queen cruise ship. The cruise includes a brunch, with time to shop in Newport and enjoy the Brick Marketplace. The bus leaves Andover at 7:30 a.m., returning in early evening. Cost is $42.

Other trips are planned. Registration for all trips is at the DCS office in town offices on Bartlett Street, Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., or call with Mastercard or Visa.

Bus coaches leave from the rear of the Doherty Middle School parking lot.

Consider
These Thoughts

by Garry A. Burke

IN SICKNESS AND IN HEALTH

People who are terminally, or otherwise severely, ill can often be heard to say that they have come to value their sickness for its ability to give them a greater appreciation of life. Those of us who are in the bloom of good health may find this difficult to understand. If so, the words of Richard Eugene Burton may help: "Sickness and disease are in weak minds the source of melancholy; but that which is painful to the body, may be profitable to the soul. Sickness puts us in mind of our mortality, and, while we drive on heedlessly in the full career of worldly pomp and jollity, kindly pulls us by the ear, and brings us to a proper sense of our duty."

While few families are adequately prepared in the event of serious illness or injury, even few are prepared for the eventuality of a loved one's death. The emotional and financial burden left to you at the time of death is hard to bear. But you can eliminate some emotional and financial burden through planning and action. Contact BURKE FUNERAL HOME. We can be reached at 475-5200, and you'll find us located at 390 North Main Street.

Y shows off $1.5M in renovations, expansion

The Andover/North Andover YMCA has opened its 16,500-square-foot addition, the highlight of its $1.5 million renovation and expansion project designed to meet the growing recreational and social needs of the community.

The building's total square footage has increased by 57 percent, enabling the YMCA to accommodate more members while providing the latest and most popular fitness equipment available in the area.

The new facilities include a 4,000-square-foot, air-conditioned Cardiovascular Nautilus Fitness Center and free-weight room, featuring a 13-station Nautilus, more than one ton of Olympic free weights, Maxicam/Muscle Dynamic equipment, treadmills and windracers; a new teaching pool with adjacent parents' viewing room; a 1,222-square-foot multi-purpose room designed for increased special-interest programs for all age groups; new boys and girls locker rooms; three program directors' offices and a maintenance workshop.

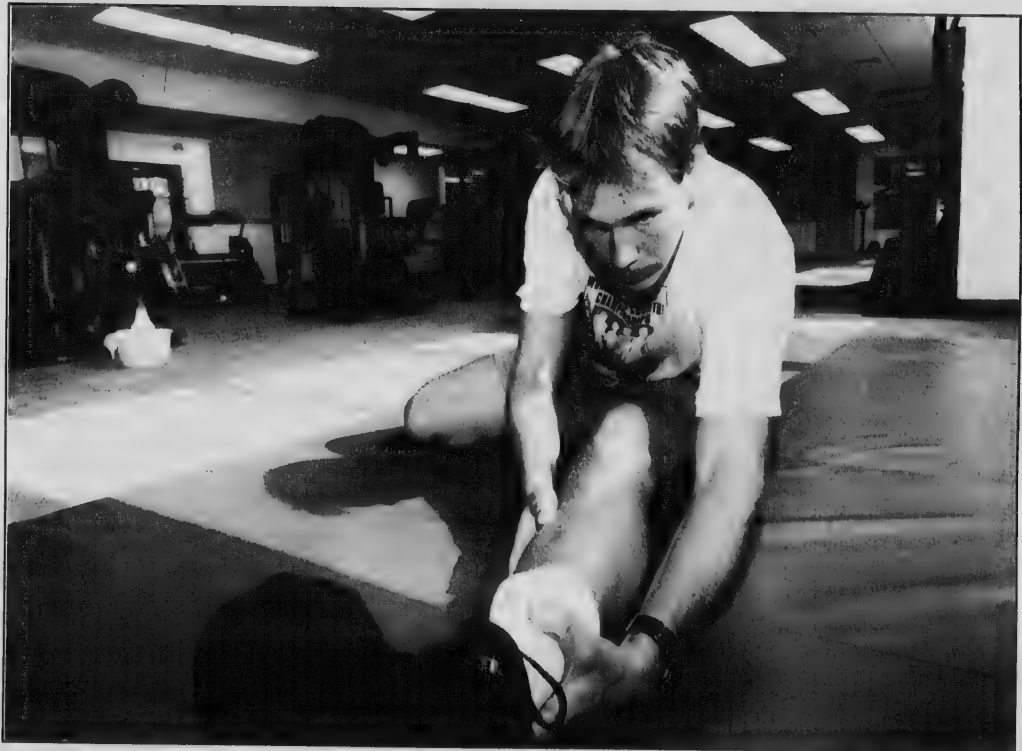

Handicapped people will have access to the entire building, including the lower level, by means of an electric lift.

Included in the project were renovations to 7,865 square feet of the existing building. These include the enlargement of two classrooms; the addition of a kitchen and bathroom for the child-care program; and the conversion of existing adult-use-only locker rooms featuring saunas and a women's make-up room.

"This marks a new beginning for our YMCA," said Heidi Wolfman, the Y's executive director. "We're very proud to be able to offer our current members these brand new, upgraded facilities and look forward to welcoming more new members to our family."

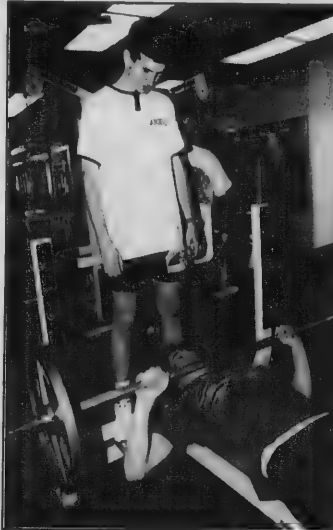

The Y has been offering people free use and tours of the facilities through Saturday, July 16. Open house hours are: weekdays from 5:30 a.m.-10 p.m.; Saturdays from 6-11 a.m. and 4:30-7 p.m.; closed Sundays.

The Andover/North Andover YMCA's renovation and expansion project is part of the Merrimack Valley YMCA's $4 million growth and modernization program. The Lawrence YMCA completed the first phase of its refurbishment last fall and expects to begin renovations of the building's single room occupancy residence floors by July 15.

Bob Curtin, an Andover resident who has been working in Guam for the past three years as a teacher, enjoys the new equipment at the YMCA on a visit back home. He worked at the Y from 1989 to 1990.

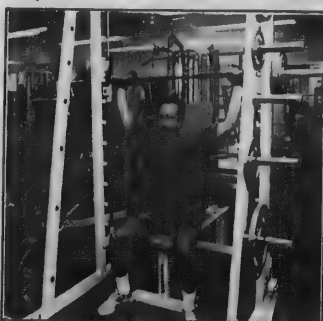

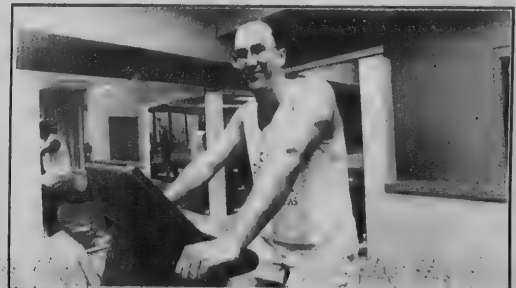

Mike Campbell, age 18, who just graduated from Phillips and will attend Harvard this fall to study physics, coaches his brother, Tim, 16, who attends Brooks School, on some of the Y's new equipment. Both live in Andover and regularly work out at the Y. Nick Sung, age 17, in the back of the photo, watches.

Joe Khoury of Methuen puts his all into weightlifting with some of the YMCA's new equipment.

Yadiz Ortiz, of Andover, tries out a new treadmill at the YMCA. She attends U.Mass./Lowell, where she is studying criminal justice.

Jeff Anderson works at FTP Software at Brickstone Square. He says he's pleased the Y has added all the new equipment and he has easy access to it.

New building inspector talks about building boom

and Mr. Buss are called "local building inspectors." They work for Kaija Gilmore, Andover's chief building inspector and their boss.]

"I think there's about $100 million worth of commercial projects coming up in Andover," he said.

Those include $49 million worth of school construction projects. They also include major projects at Genetics Institute and Hewlett-Packard, and at Raytheon Co., which is planning to re-engineer its facility for non-military related use. The plans to renovate the former Marland Mills buildings, off Stevens Street, to accommodate offices and elderly housing, are near completion and work there could start within a year, Mr. DePesa said.

Peter Aznoian, owner of the old post office building at 71 Main St., pulled a permit last month for $1.1 million in renovations to that building, and Phillips Academy pulled a permit for $850,000 in renovations to Taylor Hall.

Contractors are busy with residential construction as well.

"They have a couple hundred custom homes going on now," Mr. DePesa said.

The selling prices of those homes range from $300,000 to $1.5 million, Mr. DePesa said.

In all, 140 permits were issued by the Andover building department in June alone, for a total of more than $6 million in commercial and residential construction projects.

Land prices, which dropped dramatically a few years ago and contributed to a drop in property assessments during the 1993 revaluation, are going back up, according to Mr. DePesa. Lots purchased for $113,000 are reselling for $125,000, and some are creeping up as high as $165,000, he said. He knows of one lot that was bought for $130,000 and is now worth $160,000.

Running out of land

"But even the guys who are busy are not feeling good," Mr. DePesa said.

Outside of a few developers who have purchased large numbers of house lots, such as Yvon Cormier, most builders don't own lots.

"They're running out of land. That's what they're telling me," Mr. DePesa said.

By 1996 builders could be in trouble again, he said. The market has become very competitive, he added.

"All the guys that are building now, nobody's feeling good," he said. "Every hundred dollars counts."

Experience

Mr. DePesa said he was hired because of his extensive background in commercial building. He was chosen from 180 applicants.

He started off "swinging a hammer," and worked with concrete and structural steel.

"I was a real hands-on guy, let's put it that way."

He worked as a carpenter on the JFK building in Boston in the 1960s, and on construction of the Howard Johnson's restaurant over the Massachusetts Turnpike in Newton, which was one of this country's first "air rights" jobs, dealing with ownership of the space over the highway.

He has been in the business 30 years and was on his own for the last 20 years. He was a partner in a business in 1988 when he was caught short by the recession. He had wanted to sell out, but his partner didn't. They lost close to $2 million.

He started his own business after that, mostly in commercial construction. He did a lot of work for the Salvation Army, both volunteer and paid, and still consults on projects there. That business continued until he was hired here five weeks ago.

"I just started sending my resume out in the last six months because the markets became too competitive," Mr. DePesa said.

Peter DePesa

Ms. Gilmore has a good reputation in the building community because she knows her business and treats everybody the same, Mr. DePesa said. The responsibility of the building department is to make sure developers and contractors adhere to accepted building practices and standards. The result is a higher quality product for the person buying that building.

"We're in a position to serve the public. We're not here to dictate to the public," Mr. DePesa said. "These people are clients and they're paying the freight. We're here to serve them."

Mr. DePesa said he starts off most mornings at 7:30, reviewing codes and code updates.

From 8 to 10 a.m., he is at the front desk in the building office, issuing permits and taking plans for reviews or home or commercial building, who is not qualified to do the job.

Decks are also a problem, especially the way they are attached to houses. He recently inspected a new deck and found nine problems. The home-owner, who bought the deck as a kit and had a friend who knew carpentry help build it, thought the building inspector was being tough on him. Mr. DePesa explained that it wasn't the building inspector who was going to be on the deck during a party when it would tear away from the house and crash to the ground.

"If things are not inspected, the home-buyer loses," Mr. DePesa said. "The best thing I can say about the building department is, the client is getting a proper building or structure and they won't have to rebuild it in a short period of time or have a problem."

"We're great insurance for the homeowner to make sure the contractor is doing it right. We're a good quality control for the owner. That's what it amounts to."

Developers, contractors and builders should not see the building inspectors as the enemy, he said. In the short term, building inspectors may force builders to spend a little more money. But in the long run, the result is a better quality structure and less chance the builder will be back rebuilding it in three to five years.

Insurance companies have advised communities that they will begin rating building departments in the next few years, just as fire departments are rated now. If a town's building department is found lacking, the town's premiums could go up.

Sick-building syndrome

Mr. DePesa said one area Ms. Gilmore wants to address is "sick-building syndrome," buildings that have health and safety issues due to poor or non-existent maintenance.

"Once you put a building up, it's ongoing maintenance," he said.

And there are many buildings with serious problems, he said.

The evacuation of buildings at UMass Boston a few months ago was the result of sick-building syndrome, according to Mr. DePesa, as were the problems at West Elementary School here three years ago. He knows of some situations where air filters had to be cut out because they rusted in place.

Overseeing such maintenance is the responsibility of the building department.

"There's supposed to be a regimented inspection of these buildings. It's supposed to be an ongoing process, because things change in a building."

But the department hasn't had enough employees to keep up, and still does not have the time to address the problem adequately, Mr. DePesa said. Andover's building department had four inspectors at one time, was reduced to three, and then just two prior to his being hired last month, Mr. DePesa said. But it is an area Ms. Gilmore wants to begin to address in the next year.

'I think there's about $100 million worth of commercial projects coming up in Andover.'
Those include $49 million worth of school construction projects, major projects at Genetics Institute and Hewlett-Packard, and at Raytheon Co., plans to renovate the former Marland Mills buildings, off Stevens Street.

He still lives in Milton, where he was born and grew up. He has two sons and a daughter.

Liability an issue

Gone are the days of a political appointee landing a position as building inspector, Mr. DePesa said, and with good reason. Towns are liable for the decisions of building inspectors, and more and more often towns are being named in lawsuits for shoddy construction, he said.

Some of the large custom homes being built in Andover need engineering because of long open spans and numerous gables and pitches. One house in town required cables to be installed, after it was built, to hold the structure together.

Building inspectors continually have to re-educate themselves to remain up to date on the numerous building codes, rules and regulations, which are constantly changing and being updated, said Mr. DePesa.

Mr. DePesa said Ms. Gilmore, his boss, is strict in enforcing the code and knows her business. He said while she was checking him, he was also checking into her background because he wanted to work for a quality department. Of 350 cities and towns in the state, Andover is one of only 34 that are involved in the state's appeal process for permit decisions. Mr. DePesa said he has been told by state regulators that that is a good indicator of which communities are enforcing the codes.

going over plans with builders.

He, Ms. Gilmore and Mr. Buss then spend the rest of their day performing site inspections.

Mr. DePesa said one problem he has seen here, which is fairly basic yet fairly common, is with anchor bolts. Builders often fail to properly install the washers and nuts on anchor bolts, which are intended to lock the frame of a home to the foundation. Improper installation could allow the house to shift in heavy wind. He has seen weight-bearing beams being set on unsupported plywood or being cut out by plumbers, and wood beams set on fireplaces. Mr. DePesa said 30 to 40 percent of work being done today is low-bid, no-good work that has to be redone in a few years.

"The majority of people go for a low bid, and if they go for a low bid, they don't get a quality job," Mr. DePesa said.

He pointed to many condominium developments, not necessarily in Andover, that were built in the boom years of the '80s, and that are in poor condition.

"Where is the building department's responsibility on that?"

Right now a big problem in Andover are sinkholes on lots where junk was dumped during construction and the junk is now settling. Another problem is that many home-owners are hiring a clerk-of-the-works, someone who is supposed to oversee construction of a

Schools/town face cash problems in 1-5 years

By Don Staruk

Town and school officials this week said that both the schools and the town will have tremendous financial needs the town is not prepared to fund over the next one to five years.

The Finance Committee, Board of Selectmen and School Committee had planned a joint meeting this week to discuss financial planning, but that meeting has been indefinitely postponed because a subcommittee of the three boards identified "some serious problems," and has not come up with any proposals for other board members to even consider. The problems were brought to light by the School Committee.

"Their projections indicate that they have a revenue problem now and for the next five years," Mr. Wesson said of the School Committee.

When Tony Torrisi, budget and finance director for the town, calculated a similar projection, he also found shortfalls on the town side, Mr. Wesson said.

The problem is that revenues are going down and demands from state legislation about what the schools have to do are driving up costs, Mr. Wesson said.

"It's nothing new," Mr. Wesson said. It has just reached a critical point.

He said special-education costs, Chapter 766 expenses, are projected to be $1.3 or $1.4 million this year, which is very high, he said.

"State and federal aid for Andover has been coming down for years," Mr. Wesson said.

The subcommittee includes the chairpersons of the three boards, the town manager and superintendent of schools and their respective finance directors, and the chairperson of the schools' Ad Hoc Committee on Finance. Mr. Wesson was sitting in for Chairman Gerald Silverman at the subcommittee meetings.

One option being considered by Dick Muller, School Committee chairman, is changing the "bucket model," the formula the town uses to set its budgets, so that the schools get more money, according to Mr. Wesson. But the bucket model has been used in Andover since 1982 and has worked well, according to Mr. Wesson, and nothing specific has yet been proposed.

"Because the group had nothing to recommend to a larger group," they have postponed the joint board meetings, Mr. Wesson said.

Selectman William Downs asked that the other board members be kept up to date on what is being discussed so that there are no surprises.

New construction not cause

Gail Zeman, business manager for the schools, said this week that the problem is "you can't get blood from a stone."

"It's a very clear revenue problem that most of the communities in Massachusetts are facing," Ms. Zeman said.

The demand for funds is far greater than the money that's coming through the tax structure, she said. In Andover, student enrollment is increasing and funding is not increasing at the same rate.

Ms. Zeman said the projected problems are not due to the additions to the schools that are just getting underway.

"Actually, it would be the other way around. We're going to have to educate those students regardless of where they're located," Ms. Zeman said. "You need the teachers either way."

She said the members of the subcommittee are still in the process of generating ideas on how to deal with the problem, and coming up with options for the three boards to consider.

"We're brainstorming at this point. There aren't any simple answers," Ms. Zeman said. "It's a problem of real magnitude."

Health board orders sewage tanker removed from town

By Don Staruk

The Board of Health Monday night ordered Edward Boyle, owner of Andover Septic Pumps at 12 Dale St., to remove a 10,000-gallon sewage tanker truck out of town within seven days and to obtain insurance for his business.

Mr. Boyle said he would move the tanker to a site in Lowell within a week and that he would obtain insurance for his business by the end of the day Tuesday, July 12.

The demands came during a public hearing regarding problems at Mr. Boyle's business, including a raw sewage spill on Dale Street in April and more recent complaints of odors at the site.

On Sunday morning, April 17, at least 1,000 gallons of raw sewage spilled from an open valve on the tanker truck and onto the ground. Mr. Boyle told board members that vandals broke a lock and opened the valve on the 40-foot tanker.

"It's a terrible thing that happened," Mr. Boyle said. "Certainly, I didn't do it."

A berm around the tanker contained the spill on the property of the former Eastern Products Co. Mr. Boyle leased the storage yard from Steven Feinberg, property owner. Mr. Boyle said the tanker has been empty since the spill.

"It's almost like what you'd call an empty barrel," Mr. Boyle said.

Mr. Feinberg wanted to know the name of Mr. Boyle's insurance company so he could make a claim, possibly for as much as $12,000, for the cleanup of his property. The board wanted the name of the insurance company because the insurance is required by the state for all septic haulers. But Mr. Boyle told board members Monday night that he doesn't have insurance and didn't have it when the spill occurred in April.

The board demanded that he obtain it Tuesday and that he bring proof of the insurance to the health office by the end of the day.

The board also told Mr. Boyle it had received four complaints in the last week of odor coming from his workplace. Andover Septic has two 3,500-gallon pumper trucks and a 4,000-gallon truck and provides septic service to homes. Mr. Boyle said a mechanical problem with a piece of equipment may have caused some of those complaints, but that was repaired, he said.

Sometimes, when sewage is pumped from one truck into another, odor is released, according to Mr. Boyle, but that is not usually done outside at his business, he said.

Board members Monday night told Mr. Boyle that from now on, any such transfers that take place must take place inside his building, to reduce the release of odors. Mr. Boyle said he will also obtain a deodorizer that would help reduce the smell of any fumes released.

Everett Penney, health director, said Mr. Boyle's problems tie up a lot of the town's resources unnecessarily and that he doesn't have these problems with any of the other septic haulers who work in town. He also told Mr. Boyle he hoped this would be the last of the problems with his business.

Man charged in July 4 fire spread to a loading dock doors and roof, sending heavy smoke into the building.

The owner of the building, Stephen Frost of Boxford, put an ad in the Townsmen last week offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of those responsible for setting the fire and breaking about 10 windows at the company. But detectives James Haggerty, Donald Pattullo and patrolman Tony Valente were able to make the arrest by talking with several youths who had been seen in the area of the fire.

According to Detective Haggerty, Mr. Kiberd threw a firecracker into the Dumpster, but it was the kind of firecracker that shot sparks, and the sparks started the fire. The fire then spread to the building.

Mr. Frost said the company was a Snapper lawn mower distributor, but that it had gone out of business before the fire, and that the building is essentially empty. He said there is a fair amount of damage, especially to the loading dock area, but he didn't have an estimate for repairs.

"It's nowhere near as bad as it could have been because the fire department was right on top of it," Mr. Frost said this week.

He said it appears that Mr. Kiberd did not break the windows at the building. Mr. Kiberd said he is still willing to give a portion of the reward for information on who is responsible for that damage.

Meehan gives away his pay raise

U.S. Rep. Marty Meehan, D-Lowell, has said that he will donate $850 to the Concord Network for Women's Lives, living up to his promise to donate his automatic congressional pay raise to charity.

"Domestic violence has been in the news quite a bit lately," Mr. Meehan said. "But long after the public has forgotten about O.J. Simpson and his wife, the groups that fight abuse will be working to protect victims and help them get their lives back together. I have chosen to give my raise to the Concord Network and other women's groups in my district for the last two years because I know how important their work is to so many people."

Mr. Meehan divides his pay raise among three groups: the Lawrence YWCA, Rape Crisis Services of Greater Lowell and the Concord Network. These organizations, which received the same contributions from Mr. Meehan last year, use the funds to provide education, counseling and advocacy services for domestic violence victims and others.

The donations represent more than Mr. Meehan's after-tax 1993 automatic cost-of-living adjustment (COLA), but he does not take a tax deduction for them. Members of Congress have frozen their 1994 COLAs.

"Automatic pay increases for members of Congress are inexcusable at a time when standards of living have declined for many Americans. Simply freezing salaries in 1994 isn't good enough - Congress should have cut the automatic pay raise that went into effect in 1993," Mr. Meehan said.

"With our country's $4.6 trillion debt, members of Congress ought to be thinking of ways to cut the deficit or invest in the well-being of our communities, not trying to give themselves backdoor raises."

Community connections

Letters are wonderful. They are one of the best parts of this newspaper, we believe. They are the place where a person is free to express his or her opinion on any number of subjects.

In the letters columns people can disagree, explain why, and help this community be a better place to live by expressing different opinions. It is a place where a community can discuss its issues and differences with the goal of understanding one another better.

Carol Chanler's letter, beginning on this page, says what we try to say every week: Everyone needs to be connected in one way or another in a community. "It's too dark and lonely otherwise," if we are not connected. This newspaper's goal is to provide the space and chance for some community connections.

Andover High School junior Julia Henderson has written a well-thought-out letter, expressing a different opinion from a column written a few weeks ago in the teens' What's Up pages. It is our goal to publish letters from people of many different ages.

Martha and Bill Busby and Florence Feldman-Wood and Peter Wood rewarded us with a letter in which they thanked AHS staff for its sensitive treatment of people when the writers wanted to be the ones to tell their children, who already were at school, of the accident of their friend, Christopher Marden.

Had the parents not written the letter, the community would not have known how well the staff responded to the upset parents. Their letter helps build trust.

And woodchuck letters... Say "woodchuck" in a conversation in Andover today and chances are everyone will have an opinion - a strong one. So the two letters about the June 30 story, "Critter problems," must strike a bell in plenty of households.

The letters columns are yours. The Townsmen welcomes your letters and values your opinions. Letters should be kept to two pages, typed and double-spaced. Thanks in advance for writing.

How's my English, Prince Charles?

By Eszter Vajda

"Women curtsy, men bow your head."

There I was standing among the fine British community at the British Embassy in Budapest, eagerly awaiting the arrival of the Prince of Wales, the king to be. The British ambassador stood on the podium giving us "behavioral instructions" for the big arrival.

"Act natural, continue with your conversations. Do not step over the marked line."

Right, I thought, just smile and act politely.

When the Prince finally arrived (30 minutes late), all eyes turned toward His Majesty. He proceeded to walk on the marked route, stopping, shaking hands and "chatting."

I was standing among a group of teachers working for the British Council. We were looking very elegant and smart, sniggering about the seriousness of the affair and the receding prince. The prince looked relaxed as he approached our youthful group and shook hands with everyone, including those standing in the back. How considerate, I thought.

We informed him about our occupations and experiences as English teachers. Just as he was leaving, the hilarious prince commented, "Keep up the good work, none of the American English. Only decent British English."

Guest column

Excuse me, Charles. As I was getting ready to protest that I was an American teacher of English and was doing my best to teach, he smoothly moved to the next group of excited guests. I wonder if Prince Charles has read some classic American English literature like Mark Twain, Arthur Miller, Edgar Allan Poe, Emily Dickinson... Need I go on? Was their English good enough? Is mine good enough to teach?

Are biscuits better than cookies, a line longer than a queue, what is the difference between "half-three" and "three-thirty?"

I realize this was only a passing comment and it is difficult to make conversation among people who you have never met and will ultimately forget. I cannot imagine having to attend functions every day with all my words and actions being noted and remembered. Still, your Royal Highness, I follow and acknowledge the good work you do throughout the world, but please, respect our use of the English language.

[Editor's note: Ms. Vajda will return in August to the Andover house of her parents, Klara and Janos Vajda. She has been with the "Teach Hungary" program of the Peace Corps this year and will begin graduate school at Northeastern in September, studying history. The 1989 graduate of Andover High School has a history degree from UMass Amherst.]

It's a terrible thing, not to belong ing, of feeling part of a group, of being connected to and cared for by a community.

Any and every townwide event that draws people together, makes people feel wanted, included and needed is a salve to the pain of separateness.

The Horribles Parade, the 24-Hour Relay, Town Meeting, Art in The Park, Earth Day, Dr. Head concerts, Know Your Town Fair: these happenings are the lifeblood of a community. To participate in them is to be replenished, rejuvenated and embraced.

We human beings are so very alike. We need to be needed and long to be connected. It's too dark and lonely otherwise.

Object to killing woodchucks

Editor, Townsmen:

We are writing this letter in response to the June 30 issue of the Townsmen in which far too many columns were dedicated to "critter problems." Now it's the woodchucks. Although we are not animal rights activists, we are animal lovers.

We are compelled by our good conscious and common sense to respond to the histrionic response by some people to wildlife in our community, particularly since rabies has spread to the northeast. "Eliminate them all," seems to be the cry in most instances.

We, however, applaud Wayne Nader, Andover's animal control officer, for his sensible and compassionate stance. Bravo for his response, "I don't make a habit of trapping healthy animals just to kill them."

We have had occasion to deal with Officer Nader at our home (where a juvenile raccoon had caused a great deal of excitement but was deemed healthy and moved along as soon as night fell) and at the school where Jeanne works (parents had spotted raccoons during the day; they were healthy, nursing mother raccoons who had caught the appetizing aroma of the Dumpster).

Officer Nader has always responded quickly and been polite and efficient. His first priority is the safety and well-being of people. Following a close second is the safety and well-being of the animals. Additionally, it is not Officer Nader's or the town's responsibility to remove or destroy healthy animals which wander onto private property.

Our family's response to the threat of rabies was to educate ourselves and our son. We learned the warning signs of rabies (disorientation, frothy mouth). We never approach any animal. (Wild animals are completely off-limits. Domestic animals should be properly introduced by the owner.) Our 2½-year-old is reminded daily never to approach any animal, and he comes running to us if an unknown critter - wild or domestic - shows up.

We also share with him the positive wildlife experiences as they happen. Observing an ambling woodchuck, tracking the flight of bats during "mosquito time" and giggling from the safety of our darkened kitchen, at the antics of a mother raccoon and her babies as they cut through our yard on the way to the woods. This is one of the reasons we choose to live in a wooded town rather than a cement city.

Here in Andover, the first outcry was raised against any and all raccoons who showed themselves before the sun went down. Although primarily nocturnal, a raccoon making a daylight appearance is probably just hungry and should be observed, not immediately killed.

For every rabid raccoon discovered, hundreds of healthy raccoons have been decapitated. Next it was the beavers - not rabid, just interfering with backyards. Hey, folks, the beavers have been living on this land a lot longer than we have. It's their nature to gnaw down trees, build dams and create ponds. Destroying beavers is no solution; in fact, it shows a huge lack of caring and creative thinking on the part of the supposedly intelligent human.

Finally, we have the woodchucks. Come on! Sure, they make themselves a nuisance by nibbling on our gardens and sometimes have babies under our houses, but they are very low-risk rabies carriers. They are cute, gentle, non-aggressive, not-too-bright vegetarians. When a child is bitten or scratched by any wild animal, chances are that the child was an innocent antagonist. We know; Jeanne was one of those kids. She adored all animals, but the field mouse she chased down when she was 5 did not reciprocate, and he took a chunk out of her thumb with his cute, bucky teeth. This led to learning more about the natural world, particularly about when to and when not to intervene, and also led to working in a veterinarian's office. Education is everything.

If our young son had been scratched, the blame would be ours for not providing the proper education and discipline. It certainly would not be the animal's. And certainly, we would want the offending animal captured, destroyed (because that's the only way it can be done) and analyzed. But if it were impossible to track down the specific offender, to kill an entire community of animals would be senseless, cruel, and, to be frank, ridiculous. Where would we be if every human who acted strangely or aggressively or harmed another person was killed and decapitated to determine whether or not they were ill? In most instances, these people would be just strange or aggressive... and dead... but not diseased.

Our message is this: Learn to live with nature and wildlife. Do not destroy it. Teach your children. Use intelligence and compassion to arrive at solutions which are beneficial to all. As trite and cliché as it sounds, every living thing deserves to be treated with respect and dignity. Use caution and common sense, not callousness. Officer Nader recognizes this. And we are fortunate that most of our acquaintances share this feeling. Apathetic killing should appall everyone. And perhaps it does. Why else would an Andover mother tell her children "that the woodchucks would not be killed, but that they were being moved to a new home in the woods?" Perhaps having to tell the truth would be a strong motivator for finding another solution.

Giving kids the wrong message

Editor, Townsmen:

How ironic that your June 30 article about two little girls who raised $64 for the MSPCA was printed next to a story about some Elm Street residents who have taken it upon themselves to kill innocent woodchucks. It is comforting to learn that some parents are teaching their children to love animals, even though others are giving theirs the opposite message.

One of the advantages of living in a town like Andover is the chance to observe wild animals in their natural habitat. Since moving to this neighborhood seven years ago, we have welcomed countless woodchucks, raccoons, pheasants, rabbits and even skunks into our backyard. We consider it a privilege to be able to watch from our window as these creatures feed and raise their families. What a wonderful way for children to learn to love and respect the world around them.

It is true that rabies is a very real threat and should be taken seriously. However, the wholesale killing of healthy animals because of a minute chance that the disease may be present is paranoid as well as cruel and unnecessary. Since when has drowning or shooting an animal been considered humane? Instead, we need to teach our children to keep a respectful distance from any wild animals they may come across. They can be taught to make a loud noise if one comes too close.

While living with animals can be a nuisance, the benefits far outweigh the risks. We are grateful to Wayne Nader for showing some common sense and compassion in this matter, and we fully agree with his statement that we all need to get used to having animals around us. How sad it would be if they were all gone.

Junior at AHS defends teacher

Editor, Townsmen:

In the June 30th issue of the Townsmen, an article about teacher evaluations written by Patrick Sharkey was published. While I am in accordance with Mr. Sharkey's central themes concerning the issue, including especially his point that there exists a definite necessity to involve the students in the evaluations of their teachers, I think he made his points with support from a couple of comments which were premature and ignorant judgments on his part. He unjustly painted a negative picture of a certain math teacher because of the evidence presented by a single friend of his. I have been fortunate enough to have had this teacher for math. I found the teacher to be one "of the most wonderful, intelligent, and caring people I know, a person who has discovered a way to effectively teach the material, while still making class enjoyable and interesting to students."

His friend may have only had 20 pages of notes to show for the entire year, but I assure Mr. Sharkey that was of his own doing.

I, and many other students in my class, had multiple notebooks full of notes by the end of the academic year. It was true in my class, too, that on many Fridays, after we had reviewed and corrected Thursday night's homework and had finished everything that we were required to have covered by the end of the week, in order not to fall behind curriculum-wise, we would listen to stories of the teacher's real-life experiences, most of which dealt with the teacher's high-school years.

These stories, though criticized by Mr. Sharkey, I found to be among the most valuable lessons that I have learned during my school career. They served not only to teach us priceless lessons, but also to create a closeness and friendship between the class and the teacher. I strongly believe that this special teacher-student relationship had a very positive effect on our learning.

As for his question of "How can a full year of coursework possibly be taught in this way?" I would like to point out that my teacher's math classes (of the same course in which I was enrolled) ended the year farther in the textbook than the other teachers' classes of the same level math. I believe that I have completed this course with an extensive and comprehensive knowledge of the material. I have also never completed any other math course understanding so completely the concepts covered.

The High School handled this well

Editor, Townsmen:

On June 6, 1994, a tragic accident took the life of our children's best friend, 16-year-old Christopher Marden.

However, it wasn't until very early the morning of June 7, 1994, that we were notified of the accident. Since reports were already being broadcast by the media, a decision was made by us to go to Andover High School and tell our children personally before they had to hear the devastating news from other students.

Upon arriving at the school at 7:15 a.m., we contacted Ellen Parker, assistant principal, and informed her as to why we were there. Ms. Parker immediately went about locating our children and made available a room where we could talk to them in private. She then advised the guidance department of the situation and Ruby Easton, chairwoman of the department, arranged to have counselors teamed up with the students. Names of other students most likely to be impacted were requested and those students were located and brought to join the others where counselors were already in attendance.

All of this action took place within approximately 15 minutes of our initial contact with Ms. Parker.

Additionally, over the course of the three weeks following the accident, counselors were available to our children during in-school hours as well as off-school hours if needed. Ms. Easton was in contact with us periodically to see how the children were doing and to offer any assistance we might require. The caring and exceptionally sensitive attitude displayed by the entire faculty and administration at the school to not only our children, but to us as parents, should be commended.

Therefore, a sincere and heartfelt thank you is extended to Ms. Parker and Ms. Easton, as well as to the members of the Andover High School faculty, for all you did to make things as easy as possible for our children during a very traumatic time in their young lives.

Welcoming readers' columns

During the summer, the Townsmen is welcoming readers' guest columns, the best of which will be published on the editorial page.

Columns should be no longer than three typed pages, double spaced, and shorter if possible.

The editor reserves the right to edit letters for length, taste, libel and clarity.

Please make sure to include an address and phone number. The latter will not be published, but may be needed for clarification purposes.

Also include a one- to three-sentence description of the writer at the end of the column.

Columns are due Monday at 5 p.m.

Post 8 team triumphs in first place in Zone 8-A

By Rick Harrison

The Andover Legion Post 8 baseball team maintained its stranglehold on first place in Zone 8-A, boosting its record to 10-0 with four more victories in recent play.

The Andover wins were registered at the expense of Methuen (4-3), Peabody (11-4), surprising Zone 8-B leader Gloucester (4-1) and Haverhill (5-4).

The makeup triumph over Peabody and subsequent victory against Gloucester were registered back-to-back during a rare doubleheader at the Andover High field.

Schedule

Post 8 was scheduled to resume play last night with another key battle against Zone 8 frontrunner Lynn Post 6 under the lights at the Breed Junior High field.

The regular-season stretch run continues this weekend with two home games at Andover High, on Saturday versus struggling Salem and on Sunday versus Revere (both 5 p.m. starts).

Andover 11 Peabody 4

Alex Marshall (1-0) went the distance on the mound, and Post 8 broke open a close 3-1 game with three runs in the bottom of the fourth and five more in the sixth.

After surviving a shaky first inning Marshall allowed six hits, two earned runs, walked two, fanned three and threw 103 pitches.

Peabody scored one run in the first, but also left the bases loaded, and then Marshall settled down until the seventh by which time he had a comfortable 11-1 cushion.

Andover notched three runs in the bottom of the first when Todd Harris and Jeff Lembo drew leadoff walks, Brian Flanagan reached on an error and Rick Mendez belted a bases-loaded triple.

Mendez was thrown out trying to stretch the blast to center field into a grand slam.

Post 8 moved ahead 6-1 in the fourth as Tom Gardner walked, Paul Allard walked, Marshall and Harris laced RBI singles, and Marshall stole home.

Andover batted around in the five-run sixth which featured singles by pinch-hitter Matt Marvin, Hugh Quattlebaum, Marshall (RBI), Harris (RBI), Chris Kearn and a sacrifice fly by Ryan Jacobson. Marshall scored on a passed ball and Harris on a balk.

The nine-hit Post 8 attack included two safeties each by Harris and Marshall, while Matt Wolcott reached base four straight times on three walks and a single.

Mendez was busy at first base with eight putouts and two assists in six innings.

Andover 4 Gloucester 1

Post 8 completed its doubleheader sweep as Matt Wolcott fired a masterful five-hitter, striking out nine, walking two and tossing 99 pitches.

Wolcott (4-0) was working on a three-hit shutout until the seventh, when Brent Lentz laced a one-out single and scored on Dom Nicastro's double. Wolcott then closed out the win with his ninth K and a routine grounder to first baseman Rick Mendez.

Gloucester's Nicastro also threw well in a losing cause, yielding eight hits and two earned runs in six innings. He walked three and whiffed four.

Andover scored an unearned run in the bottom of the second as Wolcott reached on an infield error, stole second and raced across on Alex Marshall's two-out single.

The eventual winning runs came in the third when Todd

Post 8 maintains stranglehold

Harris, Jeff Lembo (bunt) and Brian Flanagan rapped consecutive leadoff singles, Mendez lofted a sac-fly to rescue Harris and Lembo scored on an overthrow by the pitcher.

The final run came in the fourth as Paul Allard ripped a single, stole second, took third on Alex Marshall's long flyout, and scored on Brian Tisbert's sac-fly to left.

Tom Gardner opened the sixth with a triple to right-center, but was cut down at home trying to stretch the hit to a home run.

Harris and Marshall led the Andover offense with two hits each. Outfielders Gardner, Marshall and Flanagan combined for six putouts.

Andover 5 Haverhill 4

Matt Marvin (3-0) pitched his second consecutive complete game, suffering through one bad inning, and also drove home the winning run in the sixth as Post 8 chalked up its third one-run victory of the season.

Visiting Haverhill (5-4), with many of the same players that beat Andover twice during the high school season, grabbed a 4-0 lead in the third stanza with the key strokes a two-run double by State Division 3 champion Pentucket Regional standout Colin Young and an RBI two-bagger by Ricky Hebert.

Post 8 bounced right back with three runs in the home half, Rick Mendez lashing a two-run single and Brian Flanagan chasing home the other run with a base hit.

Flanagan tied the game in the fifth, scoring on a delayed double steal, and then Marvin singled home the clincher in the sixth.

Catcher Paul Allard played another strong defensive game for the locals, while Flanagan finished with two hits.

Andover 12 East Boston 3

Tom Gardner and Rick Mendez combined for five hits and seven RBI to power Post 8 to a convincing victory under the lights at Noyes Park.

The game was called in the top of the sixth inning because of the lateness of the hour and the one-sidedness of the score.

Matt Wolcott was the winning pitcher with five innings of three-hit ball. He walked four, struck out nine and threw 88 pitches.

The crafty righthander retired five of the first six batters he faced, nine of the first 10, struck out the side in the fourth, and yielded all three East Boston runs in the bottom of the fifth.

Andover paraded 11 batters to the plate and bolted to a 6-0 lead in the top of the first, taking advantage of five walks and a hit batsman along the way.

The free passes were issued to Todd Harris, Brian Flanagan, Mendez, Wolcott (RBI) and Paul Allard (RBI), while Brian Tisbert was hit by a pitch.

Harris laced a two-run single to center in his second at-bat of the inning, Gardner contributed an RBI single, and another run crossed on Alex Marshall's infield out.

Gardner rapped a two-run single in the second stanza, scoring Flanagan and Mendez who drew two more of the 16 walks handed out by four East Boston pitchers.

In the third Mendez lashed a run-scoring single and raced home on Gardner's double, and Mendez drilled a two-run single up the middle in the fourth inning.

Gardner finished the game with three hits, four RBI and two runs scored, while Mendez went 2-for-2 with three ribbies and three runs scored.

Marshall slammed a double and single, Chris Kearn and Allard hammered one triple each, Jeff Lembo singled and scored twice, and Tisbert added a single.

Post 8 was required to make just six plays in the field, Tisbert handling two chances at second base and catcher Allard gunning down two East Boston runners on the basepaths.

Andover 4 Methuen 3

A rock-solid pitching performance by righthander Matt Marvin overcame several defensive lapses, as Post 8 rallied from a 3-1 deficit to nip Methuen Post 122 at the Andover High field.

Marvin permitted just two singles over seven innings, striking out seven and walking only three while throwing 117 pitches. All three Methuen runs were unearned. Post 122 hurlers Bob Ruggiero (four innings) and Mike Grassi (two innings) combined for a six-hitter.

Andover inched ahead 1-0 in the bottom of the second when Tom Gardner stroked a one-out single to right field, stole second, and scored easily on Alex Marshall's triple down the line in right.

Marvin retired the first seven batters he faced, but ran into trouble with one out in the top of the third when Post 122 loaded the bases on a walk to Gary Sweatt and two infield errors.

Alan Tisbert followed with a two-run single to left, and a third error on Bob Ruggiero's grounder enabled Methuen to grab a 3-1 lead.

Jason Royston then walked, reloading the bases, but Marvin escaped further trouble when Matt Curran grounded a 2-2 pitch to shortstop

Todd Harris who forced Royston at second base.

Post 8 retaliated with one run in the bottom of the third to make it 3-2. Brian Flanagan reached on a fielder's choice, stole second, and scored when Dana McCann beat out an infield hit that also produced an overthrow.

A walk to Eric Jeanes, and Andover's fourth error, put Methuen runners at second and third with two down in the fifth before Marvin retired Royston on a pop to short.

In the Andover fifth Harris spanked a leadoff single and Jeff Lembo walked. Harris raced home with the tying run after a wild pickoff throw by the catcher and a subsequent overthrow by the center fielder.

Lembo eventually moved to third on a wild pitch, and scored the winning run moments later on Flanagan's infield out against reliever Grassi who retired all six batters he faced. But Marvin finished the game almost as strongly as he started it.

The lanky righthander breezed through the sixth in 1-2-3 fashion and, after yielding a one-out single to Jeanes in the seventh, he preserved the win when Mark Ruggiero popped out to shortstop Harris and Andre Gabryjelski grounded out to Harris. Flanagan added a single for Post 8.

Defensively Harris finished with three putouts, two assists, center fielder Marshall had three putouts and Rick Mendez played well at first base.

Little League All-Star teams lose tourney games

By Rick Harrison

Andover Little League All-Star baseball teams have not fared well this summer in the annual double-elimination 1994 District 14 Tournament.

All six local entrants lost their opening game and dropped to the loser's bracket in their respective division.

Only two of the six managed to stay alive through the third round, while the other four lost a second time and bowed out of the tourney quickly.

The two survivors, both in the Major 11-12 year old Division, were scheduled to play again last night after Townsmen presstime.

The breakdown

In the Major Division, Andover National dropped a 4-0 decision to Tewksbury American in the first round before bouncing back to edge Methuen West, 7-5, and drub Lawrence Central, 13-0, in the loser's bracket.

Andover American was nipped 4-3 by Billerica National in its opener, but came back to clobber South Lawrence East 19-3 in its second game.

Both teams played at the Chandler Road/Deyermund complex last night, the Americans (1-1) hosting Billerica American on D-1 and the Nationals (2-1) hosting South Lawrence West on D-2.

If both won they will face one another tomorrow night at Chandler Road (5:45 p.m.).

In the Junior 13-year-old Division, Andover National lost 11-3 to Tewksbury National in its first game and Andover American was beaten 8-2 by defending District 14 champ Chelmsford in its opener.

That set up a loser's bracket showdown between the two Andover teams, with National staying alive and eliminating American, 10-8.

The Nationals then played Tewksbury American and were bounced from the tourney, 6-0.

In the Senior 14-15 year old Division, both Andover teams were crunched in their opener as the Americans bowed to Lowell Callery, 14-1, and the Nationals were whitewashed by Billerica National, 8-0.

Neither was able to bounce back in their second game, the Americans eliminated 22-9 by Lowell Highland and the Nationals ousted after being blanked for the second straight game by Billerica National, 8-0.

Those results left the six Andover teams with a composite District 14 Tournament record of 4-10 this year.

MAJOR 11-12 DIVISION

Tewksbury American 4
Andover National 0
Paul Wysocki was the losing pitcher despite tossing a two-hit ter, striking out 13 and walking four in a first-round game at the Chandler Road field.

Tewksbury righty Mark Giglio went the distance, scattering five A-N hits, and the visitors put the game away with three first-inning runs.

Wysocki's early wildness got him in trouble as the big righthander walked three batters and uncorked two wild pitches in the opening stanza. He settled down nicely the rest of the way, but his teammates were unable to get on the board.

Andover National's only serious threat against Giglio came in the fourth when the locals loaded the bases with one out. But the Tewksbury hurler escaped the jam with his only two strikeouts of the game.

Contributing one single each for A-N were Mark Russo, Dave Powers, Sean Lawton, Brian DeAngelo and Mike Murphy.

Andover National 7 Methuen West 5

Righthander Bob Heitz authored a complete-game six-hitter, walking only one and striking out seven, as A-N stayed alive and eliminated Methuen West under the lights at Veterans Memorial Park in Methuen.

Andover wasted little time, grabbing a 4-0 lead in the first inning when Brian DeAngelo singled, Mark Russo was hit by a pitch, Dave Powers singled, and two-run singles were lashed by Sean Lawton and Mike Tonelli.

Methuen West scored twice in the third, but the Nationals countered with three runs as Powers ripped a double, Lawton stroked an RBI single, and Mark Rogers belted a two-run homer over the left-center field fence.

Trailing 7-2 entering the sixth and final frame, Methuen West rallied for three runs and had the tying runners aboard when Heitz got the last out on a pop-up to short.

Brian DeAngelo, Powers and Lawton led the A-N attack with two hits each.

Andover National 13 Lawrence Central 0

Mark Russo fired a route-going one-hit shutout, fanning 10 and walking two, as the Nationals destroyed visiting Lawrence Central at the Chan-dlar Road field.

Central (0-2) was eliminated from the tourney, having also suffered an earlier 11-5 defeat to Chelmsford Lupien.

Russo lost the no-hit bid early on a clean LC single in the second stanza.

A-N bolted to a 6-0 lead in the second on a walk to Dave Powers and six singles by Mike Tonelli, Brian Urbell, Brian Crowley, Brian DeAngelo, Russo and Paul Wysocki.

The locals added two runs in the third on a walk to Mark Rogers, single by Crowley, walk to DeAngelo, and an infield single by Dave Powers that also produced a double throwing error.

Andover National wrapped up its offense with five runs in the fourth, beating the approaching darkness and threat of thunderstorms.

Wysocki walked, Sean Lawton hammered an RBI double, and singles by Rogers, Tonelli, Greg Scott and Marty DeFrancisco highlighted the uprising.

Bob Heitz contributed to the 14-hit barrage with a long double off the fence in the fifth inning.

Right fielder Bobby Mazza was a defensive standout for the winners.

Billerica National 4 Andover American 3

Andover jumped ahead 3-0 in the bottom of the second inning at the Vining School field in Billerica, but couldn't hold the lead as the winners rallied for one run in the third and three more in the fourth.

Righthander Charles Daher pitched the first four innings and righty Mike Giles the final two, combining for a six-hitter and six strikeouts.

Sean Tierney went the distance on the mound for Billerica National, yielding five hits while walking three and fanning six.

In the Andover third Daher walked, Matt Santos beat out a bunt single, Giles ripped an RBI single to center field, Brian Faulk followed with a run-producing single, and the third run crossed on a wild pitch.

Billerica's first run came on a passed ball, and in the pivotal fourth frame Mike Dunton singled, Mike Horgan beat out a bunt, Ben Bonacci walked, Dunton scored on a wild pitch, and Chris Santosuosso singled to rescue the tying and winning runs.

Andover American threatened in the bottom of the sixth when Faulk drew a one-out walk, Phil Bancroft was hit by a pitch, and both runners advanced on a wild pitch.

However, Tierney bore down to strike out the next two batters and preserve the Billerica victory.

For the game, Santos legged out two bunt singles, Rick Sheldon singled and Daher added a base hit.

Defensively, Mike Giles played a solid game at shortstop before moving to the mound in the fifth.

Andover American 19 South Lawrence East 3

The locals scored in every inning en route to this rout at Lawrence Stadium, notching four runs in the first, one in the second and third, nine runs in the fourth and four in the fifth.

Winning pitcher Brian Faulk (five innings) and lefty reliever Rick Sheldon (one inning) combined for a three-hitter against SLE, which was outscored 41-3 in its two tourney games.

Sheldon also powered the offense with 4-for-4, including a double, and he reached base a fifth time on a walk.

Mike Giles drove home four runs with a pair of singles, Brian Wittbold ripped a double and single, Chris King added two hits and one RBI, Justin Games two singles and catcher Phil Collins one safety.

Giles once again sparkled defensively at shortstop.

JUNIOR 13 DIVISION Tewksbury National 11 Andover National 3

A-N was locked in a 1-1 tie after three innings, and trailed only 4-2 before Tewksbury National broke the game open with four runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth inning at the Andover High field.

Andover scored once in the second stanza when complete-game pitcher Rick Johnson slugged a bases-empty home run to right-center field.

Johnson singled and eventually scored the second A-N run in the fourth, while Chris Cordima singled and later crossed on D.J. Bligh's sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Pat Murnane clouted a long triple for Andover, and contributing one single each were twin brother Charlie Murnane, Troy LoRusso, Joe Dolan and Sam Dadd.

Defensively, A-N turned a 1-4-3 double play in the seventh from pitcher Johnson to second baseman Chris Cordima to first baseman and twin brother Dave Cordima.

Mark Morris was the big story for Tewksbury as he spaced eight hits for the pitching victory, and led the offense with a two-run double, two singles, three RBI and three runs scored.

John Nickerson added a solo home run and single for T-N, while Jason Daley went 2-for-3 and shortstop Paul Davoran was a defensive standout.

Andover teams face disappointing losses in tourney

Chelmsford 8 Andover American 2

Defending District 14 Junior Division champ Chelmsford, which advanced to the State Tournament final last summer, wiped out an early 1-0 deficit to beat Andover American at Volunteer Field in Chelmsford.

Lefthander Joe Sousa (three innings), Scott Trahan (one inning) and Mike Curtis (three innings) did the pitching for Chelmsford.

Sousa belted a two-run double, while Pat Gilbride and Chris Morris added timely singles, as Chelmsford chipped away with two runs in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Andover National 10 Andover American 8

Charlie Murnane's bases-loaded three-run triple to right field in the top of the sixth proved to be the game-winning hit, as A-N eliminated intra-town opponent Andover American in their showdown at the West Middle School field.

Murnane's key blast broke open a 6-6 tie, and the Nationals withstood a last-ditch rally by the Americans in the bottom of the seventh.

Rick Johnson, who relieved starter Pat Murnane in the fifth, was the winning pitcher. Murnane and Johnson combined for 11 strikeouts.

Dave Nichols and Justin Yee did the pitching for Andover American.

A-N jumped ahead 2-0 in the first inning on singles by Charlie Murnane, Johnson and Sam Dadd (RBI).

The winners doubled the lead to 4-0 in the top of the third after singles by Johnson, Chris Cordima (RBI) and Pat Murnane (RBI).

The Americans rebounded for five runs and a 5-4 advantage in the bottom of the third, as Rick Labbe hammered a two-run double and Steve Arsenault singled. Matt Kish (walk), Kevin Barry and Bob Rawlinson scored one run each in the rally.

The Nationals seesawed back in front, 6-5, in the top of the fifth on walks to Joe Dolan, Chris Cordima, Troy LoRusso and one single each by the Murnane twins.

Andover American pulled even 6-6 in the bottom of the stanza when Labbe singled and Gerard Feinberg slammed an RBI triple.

In the pivotal A-N sixth Dadd rapped a one-out single, D.J. Bligh walked, Pat Murnane singled to load the bases, and Charlie Murnane clubbed his opposite-field three-run triple to right. Dave Cordima then singled home Murnane with an insurance run.

The Americans made it interesting in the bottom of the seventh when Rawlinson walked, and Rick Labbe lofted a two-run homer over the right field fence into the tennis courts.

But Johnson preserved the A-N victory by retiring the next two batters on a strikeout and grounder to second base.

Charlie Murnane, Troy LoRusso and Dave Cordima led the Nationals attack with two hits each, while Pat Murnane sparked defensively at short.

Tewksbury American 6 Andover National 0

The Nationals bowed out with a 1-2 record as righthander Josh Westaway of Tewksbury American tossed a complete-game four-hitter at Obdens Field.

Andover hit the ball, striking out only once, but two serious threats went by the boards as Tewksbury made the key defensive plays.

A-N had baserunners at second and third with no one out in the second inning of a 1-0 game, but Tewksbury second baseman Brad Columbus made a running catch and doubled up an Andover player at the plate as he tried to tag and score.

The Nationals also had a potential big inning snuffed out when Westaway picked a runner off second with the bases loaded.

Rick Johnson went the distance on the mound for Andover, whiffing seven and walking four.

Johnson also contributed two hits, while Pat Murnane and Dave Cordima had one safety each.

Mike O'Neil, Brian Godoy and Frank Penney had two singles and one RBI each for Tewksbury American, while Brad Petros slammed a run-scoring double and Mike Pellegrino added an RBI single.

Tewksbury chipped away with single runs in the second, third, fourth and sixth, before adding two final tallies in the seventh inning.

SENIOR 14-15 DIVISION

Lowell Highland 22 Andover American 9

Lowell sent 16 batters to the plate in the top of the first inning at Andover High, scoring 11 runs before Andover American even came to bat.

The rest of the elimination game was even, although Highland held a 17-0 lead before the locals got on the board with two runs in the fourth and a seven-run explosion in the fifth.

Jeff Sandison slugged a triple for the Americans, Jeff Bellistri added a single and pitched two strong innings of late-game relief, and Brian King also played well.

For Lowell, winning pitcher Tyler Gibson contributed three singles and Jim Conant laced two safeties including a three-run homer that rolled up the left-center field gap.

Mike Marshall lashed a double and single, while Scott Ouellette and Joe Ricard delivered two singles each in the 20-hit Highland barrage.

shutout losses.

In the elimination game at Billerica's Locke School field, A-N was almost the victim of a perfect game.

Righthander Steve Fell of Billerica National retired the first 18 Andover batters in order, and finished the game with a one-hitter, no walks and seven strikeouts. He faced just 22 batters in seven innings, one over the minimum.

Scott Brodsky spoiled the perfect game by leading off the Andover seventh with a sharp line-drive single to center field.

Fell slipped right back into the groove after the hit, retiring the next three batters in order.

Billerica National scored all the runs it needed in the first, combining four walks, one Andover error and some aggressive baserunning into a 5-0 lead.

The winners added one run in the sixth and two more in the seventh to complete the attack.

Garrett McKinnon went 3-for-3 and scored one run for Billerica, while Chris Dunakin had a double, single and scored twice.

Derek Sarno kept the perfect game alive in the fourth when he made a nice running catch in center field.

Henry Matos (two innings) and James Lacina pitched well for Andover National.

OPEN AND SHUT CASES

The onset of summer presents car owners with a good time to check the thermostats of their car engines' cooling systems. This component is designed to open or close at designated temperatures. When coolant temperatures fall below the 170 to 187 degrees F. range, the thermostat remains closed to inhibit the flow of coolant through the engine, thereby allowing the engine to warm up. Above this temperature range, the thermostat opens to enable the engine to rid itself of unwanted heat. If a thermostat is stuck in the open position, engine warm-up time increases and engine life decreases. If a thermostat is (partially) stuck closed, the engine will run hot or overheat. This latter possibility is made all the more likely by hot summer weather.

With the hot summer weather upon us, it is important to get your vehicle's thermostat system checked out as soon as possible, especially before a long trip or summer vacation. Here at NASSAR FORD, our skilled service technicians will be happy to make sure that the cooling system in your vehicle is up to par. All of our technicians are trained by Ford Motor Company, which insures you the best quality service. We also have a large selection of new and previously owned cars and trucks, with a friendly sales team that's informative but never high pressure. Please stop by and see us at 320 S. Broadway in Lawrence, or call (508) 688-6904. Our service department is open Monday through Friday from 7:00 AM to 5:30 PM.

HINT: The approach of summer is also a good time to replace or renew your car's cooling system, antifreeze/coolant, and

Elm Street Automotive

Quality service at reasonable price has been a hallmark of Ron Abraham's Elm Street Automotive for almost twenty-three years. The base of loyal customers and the number of customer referrals to Elm Street are an indication of his success in meeting this goal.

The heat of summer can be hard on a car, and with a staff of four A/C certified technicians, Elm Street Automotive can make sure your summer driving is cool and comfortable. They are specialists in diagnostic and repair work on automobile air conditioning systems.

The technicians at Elm Street Automotive can easily make other necessary auto repairs. They are well trained in the diagnostic testing of computer and electrical systems so they can identify any problem in these areas immediately. They offer complete light truck and auto services, and foreign cars are a specialty. For customer's convenience, pickup and delivery can be arranged.

Elm Street Automotive offers twenty-four hour towing and road service. Their fleet of towing vehicles, including a flat-bed, are ready at all times to provide help for stranded motorists. They are an AAA authorized repair facility for Andover. Master Card and Visa are accepted.

Elm Street Automotive is located at 9 Lupine Road, Andover. Hours are Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Giant Glass announces the Grand Re-Opening of their Lawrence location

Giant Glass Company, Inc.

Giant Glass Company, Inc. is pleased to announce the Grand Re-Opening of their fourth location in Lawrence at 120 Amesbury Street, after a fire last November. Already having stores in Chelsea and Weymouth and a showroom and warehouse in North Andover, Giant Glass is the primary installer of auto glass in the Merrimack Valley and the largest glass company based north of Boston.

The fleet of sixteen trucks, under the direction of General Manager Guy Strazzer and manned by experienced glass technicians, makes expert glass replacement services available on site at one or their shops or at the customer's home or place of business. This service is especially important when a windshield is shattered, making the vehicle unsafe to drive. All you need to do is call Giant Glass and they will take care of the rest. Apart from their superior service, Giant Glass deals directly with insurance companies. They also accept both Visa and MasterCard.

Giant Glass is also a dealer for Harvey Windows. These vinyl double-hung, single-hung and picture windows may be replaced or installed with minimum construction. If the windows are purchased from Giant Glass, installation is free.

Giant Glass provides many other services, including installation of store fronts of thermopane or plexiglass, commercial and industrial glass, interior applications, furniture tops and tub enclosures. They repair storm sashes, storm doors and windows. Installation and repair of sunroofs on foreign and domestic cars, vans and trucks are also available.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
Essex Division
Docket No. 94P 1327-EI
Estate of RICHARD G. LOCKE late of Andover in the County of Essex.

NOTICE
A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that a certain instrument be probated purporting to be the last will of said deceased by RICHARD G. LOCKE, JUNIOR of Rockingham, and CAROLE JEAN STANKATIS of Canterbury, both in the State of New Hampshire, praying that they be appointed executors thereof, without giving a surety on their bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Salem on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on August 1, 1994.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving specific grounds therefor, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Thaddeus Buczek, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Salem, the first day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-four.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
Essex Division
Docket No. 94S0161-G3
NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in THE JOHN W. MCCARTHY, JR. IRREVOCABLE TRUST - 1000.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the first account of MARILYN NESS as Trustee of the MCCARTHY VOTING TRUST has been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Salem on or before the fifteenth day of August, 1994, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account. If you desire to object to any item of said account, you must in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. Rule 5.

Witness, THADDEUS BUCZKO, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this fifth day of July, 1994.

Dealing with the no-smoking bylaw

By Neil Fater

Rose Vandewalle considers herself an upstanding citizen.

She raised two children, is spoiling four grandkids, and in May was awarded one of two Unsung Heroine Awards by the town.

"Now, I'm being thrown out on the street," she said.

Ms. Vandewalle is one of the many smokers working, living, shopping or eating in town, who will change her lifestyle because of the smoking bylaw approved at Town Meeting.

Yesterday, July 13, the smoking ban took effect, prohibiting smoking in municipal buildings, restaurants, sections of stores, and other indoor, public areas. Ms. Vandewalle, phone operator for the town, did not savor her last cigarette indoors at town offices, Tuesday.

"You can't enjoy something that makes you angry because of the unfairness of the whole thing. All I know is that after working there seven years, knowing I have to be tossed outdoors is very upsetting," she said. "Here it is, I'm being treated like something less than a human being. It's degrading."

Ms. Vandewalle does not want to smoke in public areas while she is working, she just wants to enjoy her break in the designated smoking room, particularly when the weather turns sour, she said. She doesn't see the reason for taking away the room used only by smokers.

Town-office employees are not the first people prohibited from smoking where they work.

The 1993 Education Reform Act banned smoking in school buildings and grounds, the culmination of continuous cutbacks in school smoking.

"I think it was obviously difficult for people who were smokers. I think they went through a lot in changing that behavior," said Eileen Woods, the non-smoking principal of South School.

"I'm talking 24 years ago now, I would say at least 50 percent, if not the majority (of teachers), smoked," said Steve Jankauskas, a South School teacher who smokes.

The first few years he taught, many people kept an ashtray in their desk and smoked in their rooms. If a student walked in the room, he said, "You'd quickly grab the ashtray, stick it in the desk, and hope it wouldn't catch on fire before they could grab their homework and leave."

"Now, basically, with no smoking in the building at all, the option is to either get in your car and drive around the block, or not have a cigarette."

It seems many people are choosing not to have a cigarette at all, according to school employees. Debra Dunn, principal of Bancroft, believes all the teachers in her school are non-smokers, and Charles Friel, principal of West Elementary; Dick Neal, assistant superintendent; Ms. Woods; and Floyd McManus, Doherty principal, could only think of a handful of smokers with whom they each work.

"They went from being able to smoke in a designated smoking area to having to get in their car and go across the street. You can't even sit in your car," said Mr. Friel.

"The overall impact over the progressively stringent conditions is that there's a tremendous amount of people who have stopped smoking. So, health-wise, it's had quite an impact," said Tim Thomas, Andover High principal. "I know we've had a lot of people quit."

Mr. Jankauskas, who still smokes, said the school-day ban has not been a terrible hardship and he now views the school as "just another place you get used to not smoking."

"Maybe (it) helped that it's sort of been happening gradually over the years," he said. Resentment by other teachers who smoke has also died down, and there are no more talks of buying a smoking-only van to park across from the school.

"It just isn't part of conversation. After the first two weeks you never heard about it again," he said.

As for the town-wide smoking ban, Mr. Jankauskas said he voted for it at Town Meeting.

"I think probably most smokers do want to quit and it probably will be helpful over time," he said.

Want to quit? Here's help

By Neil Fater

Smokers in town are feeling shunned, persecuted and just plain angry. Pamela Ross-Kung, Healthy Communities Tobacco Awareness program director, wants to be there for them.

"Especially in Andover right now, it's like they have the plague. A lot of people feel as if they are looked down upon. It's not you, the smoker, it's the smoke. There has to be sympathy for the smoker," she said.

Pamela Ross-Kung

Ms. Ross-Kung and her program are located in Old Town Hall, where they have $140,000 in state money to assist the Andover, North Andover, Methuen and Middleton boards of health. The program's main focus in Andover is education, and it has prepared brochures, restaurant posters and table tents explaining the new bylaw to Andover residents and patrons. However, Ms. Ross-Kung also wants to offer assistance to those smokers who are trying to quit, regardless of how many times they have tried in the past. Because smokers often do

Wood furniture needs special care in the summertime

Summer sun and rising temperatures can wreak havoc on your furniture and floors. Pollen, dust and humidity can damage and shorten the life span of indoor and outdoor furniture. But with special care, it is possible to keep furniture looking beautiful for years.

Indoors

With open windows and doors, all kinds of dirt blows into the house. If furniture is not cleaned properly and often, pollen, dirt and dust blown in from the outside and air conditioning can cause permanent damage.

By following these tips, you can protect your finished furniture through the summer months:

- Dust furniture often to remove surface dirt.
- Remove stubborn soil with a soapy solution of a gentle cleaner and a well-wrung sponge. This will keep the finish clean and protect the life of your furniture.
- Keep wood furniture dry by immediately wiping it with a soft, dry cloth to remove excess moisture.
- Keep wood furniture in cool, dry areas of the house. Moisture and humidity can cause wood to expand, split and crack.

Outdoors

Direct sunlight can cause wicker or redwood furniture to dry and crack. Excessive humidity can soften wicker glue joints and create a build-up of nasty mildew. Vinyl seating covers take a beating and accumulate dirt from outdoor elements, party spills and heavy summertime use.

The following advice is offered for preserving your treated outdoor furniture:

- Clean outdoor furniture, including wicker, plastic and vinyl seat cushions at least once a month with a mild soap using a well-wrung sponge. Rinse and place furniture in the shade to dry.

- To remove mildew stains, clean with a solution of 1/4 cup household laundry bleach diluted with one cup water. Rinse with water and dry with a cloth. Be careful not to mix bleach with other household cleaners or dangerous fumes can result.

- Vacuum wicker furniture carefully to remove dirt caught between the fibers that can weaken the wicker. Clean with a soft cloth and a gentle cleaner.

- As always, keep all household cleaners out of the reach of children.

A hardwood floor can look beautiful all year round with care and attention to its finish

For those who love the look of hardwood floors, but get headaches thinking about the upkeep, think again. With just a little care, the beauty of a hardwood floor can last a lifetime. Interested in giving your floors a facelift? Follow these tips from the hardwood floor experts:

- The care of your floor depends on its finish. To clean floors with polyurethane finishes, damp-mop periodically with a quarter cup of vinegar diluted in one quart of water. Do not damp-mop a wax-finished floor. Instead, buff to restore its luster.

- Sanding and refinishing aren't always necessary to make a waxed floor look new again. Often, a dull finish can be rejuvenated just by buffing and waxing with a paste wax.

With just a little care, the beauty of a hardwood floor can last a lifetime.

- Vacuum or dust mop at least once a week to remove grit, which causes scratches. Twice a year, apply a wax cleaner to strip away accumulated wax and dirt.

- Keep water off the floor; an excessive amount can cause wood to warp or stain.

When a spill occurs, wipe it up immediately with a damp cloth. Then quickly wipe dry. On waxed floors, cigarette burns, water spots and heel marks can be removed using very fine steel wool and paste wax.

- If a floor does need refinishing, ask a professional flooring contractor for advice.

Moynihan Lumber features Marvin Windows in a wide variety of shapes and sizes.

It's your choice. When you select Marvin windows, it's your choice. Marvin is the perfect choice when choosing a window for your remodeling or new construction project. Marvin makes windows in more than 8,000 standard sizes and virtually unlimited number of custom shapes and sizes.

Marvin gives you the opportunity to express your individual life style, taste and values. You see, all Marvin windows and patio doors are "made to order." That's right, Marvin makes your window when they get your exact specifications and design. At Marvin they know that the right window for you is not sitting in some warehouse, it's in your mind.

Marvin makes a casement that is a beautiful case for efficiency, a double hung window that bends over backward to please you, and a round top that builds circles around their competition. Marvin also features authentic and simulated divided lites that allow you to create a stunning look with virtually an unlimited variety of lite patterns.

The place to go for Marvin windows is Moynihan Lumber in North Reading. Moynihan Lumber is located minutes from Routes 93, 28 and 62, at 164 Chestnut St. in North Reading. Moynihan is open from Monday through Saturday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Moynihan Lumber features Marvin windows in their door and window showroom. In Moynihan's show room, you can see an example of Marvin craftsmanship and quality. The Marvin window might best be described as "beautiful wood beautifully put together." While you are at Moynihan's show room, you can touch and feel Marvin's quality. It also allows you the opportunity to see the wood construction and learn about Marvin's Low-E energy efficient glass.

At Moynihan Lumber, window professionals sit and discuss your window needs. They learn what features you need or want in a window, where the window will be placed, and recommend the best product for you and your home. Because Marvin is "made to order," you want to be sure there are no errors in selecting size, style or design of your new window.

So, if you're looking for a window to fit an existing opening, have an interesting idea or simply need a quality replacement window for your home make the choice. Choose Marvin and Moynihan Lumber.

What's hot? Experts predict 1995 home color trends

Just after Fourth of July celebration comes the color forecast for 1995 — sparked by cleaner, brighter colors, bursting with rich accents and shimmering with metallic highlights.

Deep, clear blues and purples of every variety, light yellows, brighter reds, aqua, teal and other blue-greens are just some of the "true" colors being forecasted for home decorating next year. Complementing these colors will be copper, yellow golds, silvered grays, bronze, burnished metals and translucent finishes.

This is the prediction of more than 30 color watchers who were surveyed for the 26th annual color forecast of Decorating Retailer magazine. The magazine is the trade journal of the National Decorating Products Association, which represents independent retailers selling paint, wallcoverings, window treatments and flooring. Survey respondents are well-known color experts from across the decorating products industry.

Many of them noted that growing optimism with the economy is helping to brighten the palette. As the economy improves, some color watchers predicted that the palette might really explode.

"Watch what will happen with color and design," advised Ken Charbonneau, director of color marketing for a paint company.

"As the economy gets better, the consumer will be less prone to 'play it safe.' In the meantime, colors that are on their way out are anything dirty, dusty and depressing," he added.

Vivid colors to watch for include blue, aqua, lipstick red and chrome yellow. Blue and yellow, which have been long-time favorites in Europe, will be a number one color combination here. Experts also are seeing increased use of taupes or creams with black to create drama.

Accent colors, in particular, will be brighter and more daring. Expect to see periwinkle, mint, raspberry, navy, rich browns with hints of red and medium greens. (Some of these will even wind up on exterior front doors.) The hottest seller in this category will be purple.

"Purple is probably the most important color," said Nada Napoletan Rutka, current president of the Color Marketing Group and owner of Nada Associates design consulting firm.

"Its range of expression is extensive, from shocking to exotic, regal to earthy."

According to Rutka, purple in brighter tones adds interest to natural colors, and in deep eggplant shades complements their warmth. Mid-range purples in wisteria, lavender and pansy create a garden-freshness when used with greens. And, "Purple with spice tones is exotic," she said. "Moroccan, Indonesia and African cultures all use purple to spike the palette with an exciting splash."

At the same time, next year's palette will continue to make room for earthy, natural colors as a result of growing ecological and environmental concerns.

Softer and more livable than the earth tones of the '70s, today's natural colors work well with the comfortable lifestyles of the '90s.

They include deep floral and berry shades, clay reds, straw yellows and warm sun-faded neutrals. Additionally, Mother Nature's favorite color — green — is at the top of the color charts, where it has remained for the past three years. All shades but yellow-green are growing in popularity.

"Green is the color of the year," said Malcolm Cooper, vice president of design for a wallcovering company. "Green, and especially hunter green, is our number one seller in wallcoverings. The green palette includes an abundance of shades, from guacamole to teal."

The dichotomy between vivid, dramatic colors on one hand and gentle earth tones on the other suggests that the real sparking of the palette has more to do with color variety than intensity. Experts themselves are divided as to whether home decorating colors will be brighter or more subdued next year. But nearly all agreed that colors will be diverse.

Beth Stamets, commercial stylist for a coated fabrics company, summed up next year's colors this way: "The emphasis on self-awareness, inner growth and the healing environments, along with global awareness, brings the outdoors in to us with warm, sun-kissed colors, golden yellows, blushes, apricots and weathered blues and green-blues."

"It's the lift in the economy that brings us new brights — reds, blues, purples, yellows and oranges — saturated with color."

Wood blinds continue to grow in popularity for their durability and natural good looks

The consumer's love for wood and blinds has led to one of the hottest selling looks at the window. Wood blinds are in an increasingly popular window treatment not only for their natural good looks but for their durability.

Currently, the fastest sales growth is in 2-inch horizontals. Interestingly, these huge sellers were non-existent several years ago. Now, they come in a variety of finishes, including lighter wood tones, white and pastels to coordinate with current color trends.

Many companies also offer other wood accessories to tie the look together. These include wood drapery poles, for example, wood cornices and valances and sunbursts for arch-shaped windows.

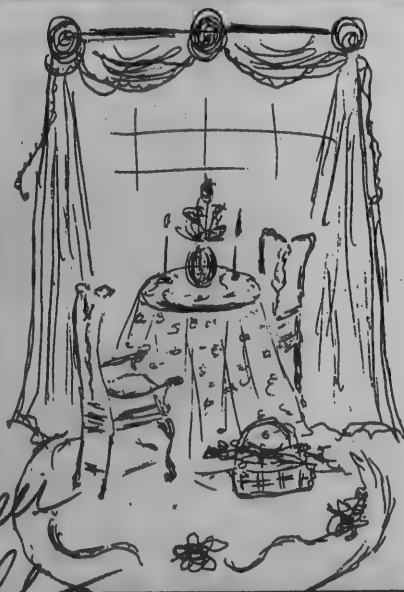

In general, the entire horizontal and vertical blind market has been booming for some time now. With the twist of a wand or pull of a cord, these versatile treatments offer light control and privacy-not to mention sleek good looks.

Depending on the window, blinds and accessories often have to be custom-ordered. For more information, contact a local independent decorating retailer.

Carpet shopping made a little easier

By Veronica Steers

Variety is the spice of life but variety can make shopping for carpet a challenge.

Technological advances and stain resist treatments have revolutionized home decorating by adding durability and increasing our decorating possibilities.

With so many colors and styles to choose from, even the smartest shoppers can get confused. However, by keeping decorating goals in mind, and arming oneself with a few carpet facts, one CAN become a smarter carpet shopper.

First, start by investigating carpet retailers. Ask friends and neighbors to recommend an established dealer. Quiz the store's sales people and trust your instincts. If you feel the sales staff is insincere or disinterested, try another retailer.

Bring color and fabric samples and even photographs of rooms to be redecorated to the carpet showroom. Discuss decorating needs with the sales person.

What's best for you? What kind of carpet will best suit your decorating needs? Here are some of the styles currently on the market, each one suitable for a variety of applications:

• Level loop pile.

Extremely durable, withstands heavy traffic. Ideal for hallways, family rooms.

• Multi-level loop pile.

Elegant pattern combined with durability. Also called "sculptured" or "carved" style.

• Cut pile.

Includes many popular styles which differ in appearance. Velvet and plush styles are suitable for any formal decorative setting, such as dining rooms and guest bedrooms. Saxtonies use yarns of two or more ply, which are tightly twisted and then heat-set together to give the carpet stability and permanency. This style is perfect for living rooms, dining rooms and bedrooms. Frieze carpets are extremely rugged and ideal for hallways, stairways, dens, child playrooms, family rooms and finished basements. Cut and loop pile styles are excellent for decorating simply furnished rooms.

Be sure to check the style's back label for manufacturer wear warranties and special care instructions. Finally, if the style features a protective treatment, check to see if it carries a limited stain warranty.

Knowing where and how to begin your search is half the battle. The next step is finding a style you think will enhance your home.

Tile with style to increase home value

Adding value to your home can be as easy as using premium materials and doing the work yourself. When you do your own tiling, you can invest some of the money you're saving in top of the line tiles. With new advances in tile technology, luxurious looks such as stone, mineral, marble and hand-painted are available for about a third the price of the "real thing." Italian tiles and trims are among the most prestigious and can make a small bathroom look like that of a palace.

Select the tiles for the theme or look you want to achieve. Remember, if you're on a budget, you can achieve high impact results even in a small area. "Your best bet is to do some dry layouts first. Try different patterns and mix and match colors before affixing them," suggests Kerry Lane, homecare and tiling specialist at Red Devil, Inc., Union, N.J.

After making tile selections, head to the hardware store for the appropriate tools and chemical products to tile with style. These include: a thinset mortar compound for affixing tile to a wood subfloor or tile paste/adhesive for wallboard; premixed or water-based tile grout; tile and grout sealer; a scraper to remove old tile; a grout rake to remove old grout; a hydra sponge for dampening; a notched tile trowel for applying mortar; a gum rubber float for applying grout and tile spacers. If fixtures are already in place, a tile cutter, nipper, rod saw blade and tile sander (such as a rubbing stone) may also be required. There are ceramic tile kits available containing most of the necessary tools.

To determine how much tile is needed, measure the area in square feet (or meters). Purchase 10 percent more tiles than required, to allow for cutting and to ensure that replacement tiles for the future are within the same dye lot. Check the tiles for color variations or breakage before you begin.

Make sure the thickness of the tiles is uniform, particularly if you are mixing brands and/or types. This may be more of a factor with Italian tiles because of glazing variations. Generally, the more processes the tile goes through, the more uniform each will be within the lot. Hand-shaped tiles have visible differences from one to the other, which for some designs may be desirable.

Specialty coated windows save energy and add comfort

Giving many homeowners a whole new outlook on energy savings are special windows that help hold down fuel bills year round and add to a home's comfort and resale value as well.

These windows feature a clear, nearly invisible insulating coating called low emissivity, or low-E for short. "Low emissivity" describes the coating's ability to keep much indoor heat from escaping, or being emitted. Also, in the winter, light and heat from the sun can enter a home through the windows and the coating acts to keep it inside. The coated glass also reflects heat generated internally by the furnace and appliances.

The low-E coating works just as effectively as a summertime energy saver by keeping heat outside. It actually reflects long-wave energy from both sides, so summer heat that radiates from driveways and rooftops will be reflected away from the windows.

More than energy savers, windows made with low-E coated glass result in enhanced comfort helping to eliminate that drafty feeling near the window. They keep the roomside glass surface warmer than standard window units and reduce the formation of condensation on the glass. They also inhibit ultraviolet light transmission to reduce fabric fading. Some types may be used as independent add-on panels to improve the energy efficiency of a home's existing windows.

Tile application takes time and preparation for "dazzling" effect

Correct preparation of the floor or wall surface is an essential start to any tiling job. The surface should be smooth. Old tiles should be removed with an impact tool that easily pops them out with a single movement. Use a grout rake or grout saw to scrape out old grout.

Remember that when you tile an area, it adds considerable weight to the floor. You may wish to consult a professional contractor, to determine if added support or floor joists will be needed.

Using the notched trowel, apply the mortar compound to the floor making sure it is clean and dry prior to application. On walls, a tile adhesive may also be used. Place tiles on the compound and press firmly into wet mixture. Use plastic spacers to assure even grouting lines. After the tiles set according to manufacturer's directions (usually 24 to 48 hours), the tiles are ready for grouting.

You may choose a powdered or pre-mixed tile grout. Usually, portland cement-based powdered grouts must be mixed with water and cured with a water mist for approximately 24 hours. "Pre-mixed grouts and other water-based products are not recommended for areas where water ponding may occur," Ms. Lane said.

Follow the instructions on the back of the grout container. After grout is completely cured, a tile and grout sealer should be applied to one small area at a time. "One of the biggest mistakes a home tiler can make is to walk on the newly tiled floor before it fully cures," Ms. Lane said.

The effects of the completed tiling job can be dazzling. "Italian tiles can add incredible value to any room," said Christine Abbate, director of marketing, for a tile center in New York City, who adds that tiling is not restricted to kitchens and bathrooms. "In Italy, tiles are used throughout the home, including foyers, recreational areas, and porches." So, when using tiles creatively, do as the Romans do, and let your imagination be your guide.

Today's manufactured homes offer a unique combination of quality, value and affordability

Here are some facts about manufactured homes that may surprise many Americans.

- Manufactured homes tend to hold or increase in value.
- Location is the main factor in determining whether they appreciate or depreciate, just as with all other real estate.
- The quality of today's manufactured homes is essentially equivalent to that of conventional site-built homes.

These three statements are the findings of a new study by the University of Michigan.

The study, which was conducted by the university's College of Architecture and Urban Planning, found that modern manufactured homes tend to increase in value. The determining factors, the report said, were the same that affect other real estate, mainly "location, location, location."

The research also found that the quality of modern manufactured homes has improved to the point of being "essentially equivalent" to conventional site-built homes. It attributed this to consumer demand and to the federal building code and enforcement system, which was instituted in 1976.

Remodelling tips for an older home

For millions of Americans, a first home is often a fixer-upper that needs extensive remodeling and redecorating. The challenge for many families is keeping home sweet home from turning into the proverbial "money pit." Doing it yourself may be the answer. And whether you're planning to restore a dated kitchen or refinish worn wood floors, these helpful hints can get you off to a good start, easily and inexpensively.

- The charm of an older house lies in rich architectural details like moldings and paneled walls. If your house has neither, you can find affordable unfinished architectural elements at the lumberyard or home center. They can transform a plain room into a special one.

- Save money on furniture by shopping at flea markets and second-hand stores. A beautiful piece may be hiding under layers of old paint. Unfinished furniture is another inexpensive choice. Well-crafted oak, maple, pine and cherry pieces are available in many popular styles. Check for quality construction and consistent wood grain to ensure the best results.

- Beautiful wood floors add to the value of a home, but only experienced do-it-yourselfers should consider refinishing floors themselves. If you hire a professional, get bids from several candidates, and check references. Complete all other remodeling before tackling the floors, which can take a couple of days to sand and finish.

- Before investing in new kitchen cabinets, consider reviving the old ones with a change of color. Lighten up the look of dark wood cabinets by stripping and restaining with new wood stains for a pickled effect. Top with crystal-clear protective finish to maintain the new color. New hardware in brass or porcelain will add style and character.

- When choosing a color, first test the stain on a scrap of wood or on a hidden spot on the piece you are finishing. Experiment to see how long to leave the stain on the wood before wiping it off. The longer it stands, the deeper the color will be.

- Proper disposal of materials used in wood finishing is critical. Rags and materi-

To determine whether manufactured homes retain their value, the University of Michigan research team analyzed the prices of 20,000 new and pre-owned manufactured homes sold in Michigan between 1987 and 1990.

The University of Michigan study findings are significant because, historically, manufactured homes have been regarded, inaccurately, not as real estate, but as personal property. Depreciation, thought to be inevitable, was proven to be an inaccurate and outdated stereotype.

The Michigan study also found that the quality of manufactured homes has become "essentially equivalent" to site-built homes. The HUD Code, the Federal building standard to which manufactured homes are built, was compared to the BOCA Code, the standard to which site-built homes in Michigan and most of the northeast states are built.

"The two codes are shown to be very similar, and in a number of cases, the HUD Code is more restrictive," the report said.

The University of Michigan study showed that old stereotypes about manufactured homes are based on inaccurate and outdated information.

als used with oil finishes should be placed in a sealable, water-filled metal container immediately after use. Then dispose of the container in accordance with local fire regulations. Carefully read all label directions and precautions before proceeding.
